Coast Guard Cutter Sinks U-Boat In Dramatic Atlantic Battle

Members of the crew of the U. S. Coast Guard cutter Spencer can shave now! They had vowed to let their beards grow until their ship had a positive submarine sinking to her credit. She has that now, and the story is one of the most dramatic on the sea side of the present war. The cutter detected the submerged sub lying in wait for a big allied convoy several weeks ago and let go with depth charges as shown top left. The U-boat was forced to rise and the cutter raked the sub with withering gunfire as shown top right. With part of her conning tower shot away, members of the sub's crew leaped hysterically into the sea. A small boat from the cutter (bottom photo) picked up 40 of the Axis seamen who threw up their hands and exclaimed: "Wasserbombs! Terrible! Terrible!"

Allied Warships Rip Pantelleria

Italian 'Gibraltar' Pounded by Sea Salvos As Bombers Return to Naples, Sicily, Sardinia.

(By Associated Press)

Allied warships have swelled the assault on the Mediterranean island of Pantelleria, it was announced today, bombarding the so-called "Italian Gibraltar" twice within 48 hours in what may be the prelude to a landing attack.

Panfelleria lies 45 miles east of Cap Bon, Tunisia, and about half way across the Sicilian strait toward Sicily.

In Allied hands, the island would serve as a convenient stepping-stone for invasion of either Sicily or the Italian mainland.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said Allied naval forces shelled the island yesterday afternoon and Sunday night, reinforcing the aerial havoc inflicted on the Italian outpost day after day, virtually non-stop, ever since the fall of Tunisia May 12.

Naval salvos fell on the barracks and artillery batteries, Gen. Eisenhower's command said, and although there was some retaliatory fire from the shore in yesterday's daylight attack, the Allies suffered neither damage nor casualties.

Once again, the double-barreled thrust pointed up Allied control of Mediterranean waters without interference by the shorebound Italian fleet.

The communique said American warplanes also battered at Pantelleria and returned to the assault on Italy's other chief island strongholds of Sicily and Sardina, hammering supply ships, railways, docks and a seaplane base.

Yanks Kill 1500 Japs on Attu, Take Just 4 Prisoners

WASHINGTON—(AP)—More than 1,500 Japanese were killed and four were captured during the first 20 days of fighting on Attu island, the navy reported today, as operations on the formerly enemy-held island continued in a mopping up phase.

A communique said that from the start of the American invasion of Attu May 11 through midnight of May 30 the enemy casualties were so estimated. A navy spokesman, amplifying, said the estimate was based on an actual count of bodies and the total number killed might have been 50 or 100 per cent greater.

It would be impossible, for instance, to estimate the number killed by high explosive naval shells or those buried by their comrades under the snow.

The number of enemy soldiers remaining on Attu could not be estimated, therefore, even though the Japanese have reported there were approximately 3,000 of their force on the island to start with, and also reliable estimates here have ranged around 3,000.

This was the first comprehensive report of enemy casualties given out by American sources. A report on one night's operations which was issued by the navy Tuesday said 400 of the enemy were slain between dusk and dawn of May 29-30. Another earlier war bulletin disclosed an entire counter-attacking force

Peyrouton Resigns, Causing New French Political Crisis

(By United Press)

ALGIERS—A new political crisis precipitated by Marcel Peyrouton's resignation as governor general of Algeria resulted in postponement of a sheduled meeting of the French executive committee today and brought to a head the struggle between Gen. Charles De Gaulle and Henri Honore Giraud for wartime leadership of the French empire.

The meeting of the committee, which will rule the empire until France itself is liberated, originally was scheduled for Tuesday, but was postponed when an impasse developed between De Gaulle and Giraud.

An apparent truce was arranged by Gen. Georges Catroux late yesterday, but Peyrouton's dispatch of letters of resignation to both De Gaulle and Giraud with each general acting independently on them, forced further indefinite postponement of the meeting. Giraud's followers were said to have been particularly indignant over De Gaulle's action.

De Gaulle, who has been demanding Peyrouton's ouster as a former Vichy collaborationist, was first to respond to the resignation letter. In a bid for political leadership of French Africa, he told Peyrouton to turn over his office to the secretary general of Algeria and to "consider yourself mobilized" as a captain of colonial infantry in the Middle East.

Giraud, on the other hand, urged Peyrouton to continue as governor general "provisionally" until the executive committee has completed its organization. Then, Giraud

CITY APPROVES ROUTE 42 PLAN

Agrees to Pay $30,000 Toward $74,000 Job; 4 Streets to Be Improved In Project.

Improvement of U. S. Route 42 south from Central park to the city limits to include widening of the street at its intersection with South Main street, and resurfacing of South Main street and sections of two other main thoroughfares in the city were virtually assured today following action by city council last night in agreeing to participate to the extent of $30,000 with the state highway department in the $74,000 project.

The expenditure will provide for a bituminous surface for all of South Main street (State Route 13) and Lexington avenue (U. S. Route 42) from Central park to the city limits, Marion avenue from Glessner to Cline avenues, and Park avenue west from West Park drive to Linden road.

Contract for the work will be let by the state highway department probably in July, a state highway representative said, and

Tappan Army-Navy 'E' Ceremony to Be Staged June 16

The Tappan Stove company will receive its Army-Navy "E" award at ceremonies at the plant Wednesday, June 16, just two weeks from today, company officials announced today.

That date was set yesterday afternoon at a conference between plant officials, headed by Paul R. Tappan, president, and Lieut. (j.g.) Edward Wilson, of the ninth naval district public relations office in Cleveland.

Both Army and Navy officials will take part in the presentation but it was pointed out that the award to Tappan originated with the Navy department, for which the bulk of the plant's war products are made. Mansfield's first "E" award, which went to Hughes-Keenan May 7 originated with the war department, as did the Westinghouse award, to be presented at a later but undetermined date.

Lieut. Wilson, commenting on the wide variety of products—no less than 25 different items—being made by Tappan for the armed forces, explained that either the navy or war department may originate the award, while both branches participate in its presentation.

Less than 2 per cent of the country's war plants have qualified for the Army-Navy "E."

Mansfield Ushers In Liquor Rations Without Much Fuss

Mansfielders greeted the first day of liquor rationing with only a mild rush to the state store yesterday to buy their first whisky since May 13.

There were times yesterday when the South Park street store was crowded but buying was generally steady throughout the day with no sign of the lines which formed in front of state stores in the days before sales were suspended, Frank C. Poling, manager of the store, said.

Poling said that there is still some misunderstanding concerning the rationing set up. Several persons came to the store yesterday to buy liquor for other peo-

LAST HURDLE

Senate Expected to Pass Pay-Go Measure Promptly.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Pay-as-you-go tax legislation faced its last legislative hurdle today with every indication that it will become law before the end of the week.

The senate this afternoon takes up the compromise plan which the house approved yesterday by a vote of 256 to 114. Acting Democratic Leader Lister Hill, D., Ala., predicted that it would be accepted by an even greater majority than the 49 to 30 vote by which the senate approved the Ruml skip-a-year plan May 14.

President Roosevelt is expected to sign the bill immediately to facilitate inauguration of the 20 per cent withholding provision on July 1.

SOLDIER HELD

Charged With Manslaughter In Death of Two Men.

TROY —(U.P.)— Pfc. Michael J. Eberle, 21, of Selfridge field, Mich., was held to the Miami county grand jury today on charges of manslaughter.

Eberle pleaded innocent to two charges yesterday in the deaths of Redman Maddux, 31, and Everett Maxwell, 25, both of Cookeville, Tenn., who were hit by an army truck driven by Eberle as they repaired a tire on their automobile on the Dixie highway here.

DRIVER DIES AS TRAIN HITS CAR

Crawford Resident Killed In Second Crossing Fatality In Shelby Within Week.

SHELBY—Daniel Sheldon, 46, of DeKalb, Crawford county, was killed instantly last night when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by an eastbound New York Central passenger train at the West Smiley street crossing in Shelby.

The accident was the second grade crossing mishap in Shelby within a week.

It boosted to nine the number of persons killed in traffic accidents in Richland county so far this year. Last year at the same time, six persons had died in highway mishaps.

Shelby police said the locomotive carried the light car 200 feet along the right of way demolishing it. Sheldon, was tossed clear of the wreckage. His body was

Council Members Favor Rule Require Taxis to Post Rates

Mansfield's muddled taxi rate problem was taken before city council last night in an off-the-record session in Mayor W. J. Locke's office following the regular council meeting, with members favoring an ordinance setting up zones and requiring taxi firms to post zone cards and rates in all cabs, it was learned. Council took the rate problem under advisement.

The mayor asked council to study the variance in the city's taxi rates with a view to bringing them into a semblance of uniformity.

Principal spokesman for the zone idea was Russell Porch, First ward Republican, who said he favored the establishment of city taxi rate zones and the posting of rates in cabs to enable patrons to see whether they are being overcharged for trips.

Porch said he and other council members were not in favor of setting rates by legislation, preferring to leave that to the companies themselves.

One Mansfield taxi firm proprietor explained today that companies had increased their rates partly to discourage patronage which grew beyond the capacity of the city's cab facilities when rates were 25 cents to any part of Mansfield.

He said the cabs now have three times as much business as they can handle with their wartime gasoline allocations. Increasing operating costs also were responsible for the increased rates, he pointed out.

The Office of Defense Transportation encouraged establishment of higher rates to solve the problem, he said.

LOCKE TO RUN FOR 3RD TERM

Bases Candidacy on Record In Past Four Years; Gets Committee Backing.

Mayor W. J. Locke today announced his candidacy for a third term, asserting that he will "run on his record" during the past four years.

His announcement was no surprise since Republican leaders for several weeks have expected him to head their ticket this fall. Ralph Hardy, county G. O. P. executive chairman, said today he did not expect the mayor to have any primary opposition.

The mayor's announcement of his candidacy is the first of the primary campaign. Candidates must file their nominating petitions with the board of elections by June 11, giving them only eight more days to get their names on the August primary ballot.

By what may or may not have been a coincidence, Locke's candidacy was announced today in the American Majority, a publication of an organization of the same name, with headquarters in Elyria.

The organization's magazine went to press earlier in the week, but it still carried a picture of Locke and an extensive article describing what it termed the accomplishments of the mayor during his two terms.

Laudatory reference was made to the cash surplus in various

LINER LOST

Leslie Howard Aboard Plane Reported Shot Down.

LONDON —(AP)— A spokesman for the British overseas airways said today that a British passenger airliner "disappeared" yesterday en route to England from Lisbon, and reports from the Portuguese capital said the actor, Leslie Howard, was among the 13 passengers.

A Lisbon Dispatch reported that the last word heard from the plane was "enemy plane attacking us."

The reports from Lisbon said the plane with its Dutch crew was shot down in the stormy bay of Biscay about half way between Lisbon and England.

A Berlin broadcast, reporting from Lisbon that the plane was missing, said "it was feared it met with an accident."

Reveal Jap Plane Tried to Start U. S. Forest Fire

PORT ORFORD, Ore.—(AP)— The public learned today of the enemy's fifth futile attack on the west coast, a sneak incendiary raid by a lone airplane more than eight months ago.

Believed launched from a Japanese submarine last Sept. 28, the plane flew over the Oregon coast in early-morning fog so dense a forest service lookout was unable to see the ship although it droned directly by his tower on a mountain near here.

The lookout, Lauren S. Giebner, followed the sound of the motor as it moved northeastward. He heard a blast and saw a flash, as if a bomb had been dropped.

Giebner reported to forest headquarters and watched sharply for the fire. When the fog lifted two hours later, he spotted it in a heavily timbered canyon three miles away.

A crew of fire fighters hiked two hours over rugged mountains to reach the blaze and bring it under control.

The army previously announced a small plane flew in from the sea near Brookings last Sept. 9 and dropped two bombs. This plane also was spotted by a lookout and the fires controlled quickly. Japanese markings were found on fragments of the incendiary bombs.

WLB Orders Negotiations Terminated

Refers Strike to President for Any Action He Deems Appropriate As U. S. Soldiers Angrily Demand Mines Reopen.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The War Labor board in Washington today referred the present coal strike by John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union to the White House for "such action as President Roosevelt deems appropriate."

The board also ordered the representatives of the 540,000 striking miners and the coal operators to halt present negotiations to end the strike.

But the miners and operators went right on meeting. After a morning conference, the two factions in the strike-studded wage dispute scheduled another meeting for 2 p. m.

The WLB's telegram revealed a split in government agencies handling the walkout. Coal Czar Harold L. Ickes yesterday had sent a telegram to the miners and operators telling them to continue negotiations until a contract is reached to end the strike. However, the War Labor Board said that the negotiations must stop.

Ezra Van Horn, chairman of the joint negotiating committee of operators and miners, was asked about the WLB order.

"Have the details of that order been made public?" he asked.

Newsmen informed him that the board had released its telegram.

"Well, you all have the telegram and its contents then, but we have no comment at this time," Van Horn said. "We are going to meet again at 2:00 p. m. under the rules of this conference."

There was no comment from John L. Lewis, mine union president.

Throwing the situation into confusion, the WLB, in its order, said that the coal strike, which started Monday midnight, was a clear violation of labor's no strike pledge.

The board issued its order as John L. Lewis, president of the miners union, and coal operators entered a crucial meeting in an effort to end the strike.

The board acted as soldiers

6-MONTH SEWER CHARGE LIFTED

Council Takes Final Action on Remittal, Presenting City With $25,000 'Gift.'

City council last night gave Mansfielders a $25,000 "gift" by suspending sewer rental charges payable during the final six months of the year.

The measure remitting the charges received its first reading by council May 13 and was passed unanimously last night on the motion of Russell Porch, First Ward council member. Mayor W. J. Locke signed the ordinance immediately and it will become effective July 1.

Since council first acted on the measure last month, the bill was amended to make the remittal apply only to sewer users within the city limits.

Suspension of the charge for the six-month period was recommended May 6 in a report submitted to city officials by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce which said the city had a balance of $51,116 in the sanitary sewer and sewage disposal fund.

City Auditor Paul L. Kelley told council last night, however, that

British Cartoon Lashes at Strike

LONDON — (INS) — A terse commentary on the mine strike in the United States appeared today in the London News Chronicle.

A cartoon depicted a soldier of the Russian army voicing an appeal to "strike now in the west."

The reply came from a man represented as John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers leader, who said: "That's just what we're doing."

MILK RATIONED

Canned Fluid To Cost You One Red Coupon.

Mansfielders added another item to their ration lists today when rationing of canned milk began on short notice.

Even baby, who until this time has been unconcerned by the continually extending rationing program, will be disturbed by the rationing of canned milk which began at 12:01 today.

By OPA order the purchase of canned milk will require one red coupon stamp per pound. A consumer may buy two six-ounce cans for a single point, but each tin weighing more than eight ounces will require one stamp regardless of the number bought.

The action was taken, OPA said, to conserve dwindling supplies for infant feeding or for persons requiring canned milk in special diets.

WOMEN BLOCK LEADERS ASKED TO MAKE SURVEY OF MANPOWER

Women block leaders in the civilian defense program today were asked to make a war manpower survey in the Mansfield area, working with the U. S. Employment office in an attempt to divert workers from non-essential jobs to war employment.

The house-to-house survey is expected to get under way within the next two weeks and probably will be completed by the Fourth of July, said Mrs. John Pierce, chief of the OCD war services in Mansfield.

The check will be made by block workers while they are questioning city area residents to determine whether they are eligible for a "V-home" sticker.

Non-essential workers in Mansfield and the suburban districts in Madison township will be listed by the women block leaders and the names will be turned over to the U. S. Employment office. Workers will be urged to transfer to war jobs, but not compelled to change.

A colorful "V-home" sticker will be presented to homes meeting the requirements set up by the OCD war services. They require members of the family to follow the advice of air raid wardens, conserve food, clothing and transportation, salvage waste materials, avoid circulating rumors that might hinder the war program, and buy war bonds and stamps.

Mrs. Pierce said details of the home surveys are being worked out at meetings of zone leaders with sector and block leaders.

CONSUMER COMMITTEE TO HELP WAR RATION BOOK APPLICANTS

Disturbed by the reports that 50 per cent of the applications for War Ration Book No. 3 which have been returned are incomplete and 25 per cent have errors of such a nature that books cannot be issued, the Mansfield Consumers Interest Committee has taken steps to remedy the situation.

Mrs. H. C. Lime, chairman of the committee, said today that persons who need help in filling out their applications for War Ration Book No. 3 may come to the Ohio Public Service company from 2 to 4 on Tuesday and Thursday or to the Ohio Fuel Gas company from 2 to 4 on Wednesday and Friday.

These two centers, maintained through volunteer help, have been in operation for some time and the committee believes that they may also be used in clearing up the present situation.

AUSSIES USING CHARCOAL FOR TRUCKS, BUSES

Women Employed Wherever Possible To Relieve Men For Combat.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — From 60 to 70 per cent of the country's heavy-duty trucks burn charcoal as fuel in Australia, Mrs. Mary Alice Evatt, lately arrived from Australia with her husband, Foreign Minister H. E. Evatt, told a press conference at the Australian legation recently.

Although it takes five minutes to get the charcoal started, it "holds its own" once it begins to burn, she said. Because of the acute gasoline shortage in Australia, the government discourages railway travel, so the tremendously long distances are covered mostly by these charcoal-fueled machines, which are fanned by electric blowers.

Mrs. Evatt was born in Ottumwa, Ia., but has lived in Australia since she was a year old. Her observations of war conditions in Australia give American women information on what their Ally sisters are doing for the war effort.

As in the United States, Australian women are employed wherever possible to release men for combat duty. The government does not conscript women, but reserves the right to call them. Every woman does her own housekeeping, and entertaining has been strictly curtailed.

Women are to be kept feminine, however, and the Y.W.C.A. has a guest house where women war-workers may luxuriate in femininity on their days off, even having breakfast served in bed.

Servants are rationed in Australia. Each household is allowed only one servant, unless there is illness or at least three small children requiring help. "Few homes have any servants," said Mrs. Evatt.

Ten thousand war workers' children between the ages of 2 and 6 years are cared for daily in child centers. These centers are all under the supervision of an American girl, Christine Helnig.

Australian women are even learning to dehydrate their own vegetables. These vegetables, about the same as those American grown, are cut into tiny pieces, exposed to the sun and dried for three days. Mrs. Evatt stoutly declared that these home dehydrated vegetables are excellent in soup.

"Everyone in Australia likes the American soldiers and are doing their best to make them feel at home," said Mrs. Evatt.

800 Tickets Given To Graduates For Commencement

Principal Glenn G. Rohleder announced this morning that 800 reserved seat tickets had been distributed to members of the 1943 graduation class for commencement exercises Friday at 8 p. m. at Stadium field.

Rohleder said the tickets were issued to relieve any problem that would develop in the event the program would have to be moved into the auditorium because of the weather.

If the program is held inside, admission will be by ticket only, Rohleder said. Ticket holders will be given reserved seats if the exercises are in the stadium.

Plans are being made to accommodate 2,000 if weather conditions are favorable.

Seniors will practice for commencement Thursday at 6:30 p. m. at the stadium.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

STOCKHOLM—It is impossible for anybody in the warring world to imagine the placid life here in the long summer sunlight of Sweden. Here it is difficult to realize that in the world outside there is the taut agony of the war of nerves. There are no nerves here, especially now when everyone is outdoors living in the sun.

Clapper

In Sweden you get to wondering what the meaning of life really is. In America we strive intensely, the whole atmosphere is one of competition, of struggle to improve one's station in life and standard of living. Here there is a high standard of living, and on the whole the people lead a life that normally fulfills the average desires quite adequately. Yet there seems to be a kind of statis contentment about it that I should think would pall on Americans accustomed to a more intense struggle. Americans keep raising their sights. While we have often deplored this as trying "to keep up with the Joneses," it may be the yeast of life that any nation, like any individual, should have.

To the eye nothing could be more inviting than the life that Swedes live now in these long summer days. The whole nation moves out into the sun. People eat in the sun in outdoor cafes. On a Sunday afternoon, or at lunchtime during the week, you see young people and old people sitting on the steps of the state theater or of the art museum, or on benches around the downtown parks, all with their faces turned up into the sun. This very day thousands of families are moving out into the country. Because of the long dark winters, Sweden makes the most of summer, with such emphasis on vacations that for a few weeks business almost comes to a standstill.

The many lakes, rivers and inlets of the Baltic provide ideal vacation spots. But foreigners are excluded from some areas, for military reasons. The government has posted in the Grand hotel a list of summer places to which foreigners are permitted to go.

Labor and management are going along placidly, with no strikes for ten years in most industries, and with labor accepting the formula of adjustment that gives it only half of the increase in the cost-of-living index. In contrast to the turbulent labor relations in America, labor here is docile, and accepts the judgment of union leaders, who seem to work on good terms with management. August Lindberg, head of the labor federation, is very much like William Green in personality and outlook.

I do not mean to imply that there is no initiative on the part of industry here, as there has been a fast advance in production of wartime substitutes of many kinds. Also, Swedish businessmen not only think about postwar problems and possibilities but are working on them. For instance, Axel Johnson, the wealthiest businessman in Sweden, is experimenting with seed potatoes to help fill his ships to Latin America, where they will go for meat and coffee and other commodities, after the war. Johnson is building refrigerated cargo ships and tying them up for use after the war.

But life as a whole in Sweden seems far more placid, without the striving we know in America. This raises the question whether a nation is happier when contented or when driving in a hard struggle. In America we know that men often are least happy when they have made their pile and retire to "enjoy life." Possibly the same thing may apply to whole peoples as well as to individuals.

FOOD DELEGATES CITE FURTHER WAR PROBLEMS

Want Co-operation of More Governments In Future Talks on Economics.

(By International News Service)

HOT SPRINGS, Va.—With only one more session remaining, the first United Nations food conference today served notice on a warring world that still other problems and other governments must be brought under the light of international collaboration.

Both in their formal "declaration" and an accompanying constitution for the interim food commission which is to begin operations in Washington by July 15, conference delegates of 44 governments cast their thoughts far ahead into wider economic problems and toward nations not now among them.

The so-called "declaration of Hot Springs"—approved by the combined sections and to be ratified by the entire conference in final session tomorrow—declared forcefully on its own problem that "the goal of freedom of want of food can be achieved . . . we must make ready now."

But in looking beyond the food problems they have been considering since May 18, the delegates stated:

"We commend to our respective governments the study and adoption of the findings and recommendations of this conference and urge the early concerted discussion of the related problems falling outside the scope of this conference."

The "related" problems include the immediate one of war relief, to be taken up soon in a separate conference, and others embracing currencies and trade barriers.

"The first steps toward freedom from want of food," the declaration added, "must not wait the final solution of all other problems. Each advance made in one field will strengthen and quicken advance in all others."

And in the unofficial text of the recommendation on the interim commission, conference section four envisioned the permanent food office which is to follow and urged provision that "governments not represented on the interim commission" in due course be given membership.

Thus what is now designed as a working organization for the united and associate nations, it was indicated, eventually is to embrace all peoples of the world.

PUTS O. K. ON RELOCATION OF SIGNAL SYSTEM

City Council Approves $8,000 Project; Authorizes Sewer Line Extensions.

Relocation and modernization of the fire, police and traffic alarm and signal system under sections of South Mulberry and West Second streets will be affected under an $8,000 project approved last night by city council.

City Electrician Ernest Adams told council the necessary materials could be obtained and the work could be done for the $8,000 appropriated by council. The underground lines included in the project extend over the area from Park avenue west to West Second street and eastward to Franklin avenue.

Council set aside $5,000 from the general fund for repairing and extending the storm sewer system on Linden road, Overlook road, Central avenue, Wise avenue, Rembrandt street, and other sections of the city where repairs are necessary.

The work is expected to remedy the flooding of basements during heavy rainstorms.

In other legislation last night council authorized Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff to purchase an addressing machine for the water, sewer, and garbage department and appropriated $1,000 for the machine.

Approved the payment of $15.48 to Police Capt. John Miller for prsonal services while he was acting police chief before Chief Meade K. Bates returned to his post here last winter.

Put its O. K. on the payment of claims of Charles Conklin, William Beer, jr., Dimon Herring, and Jack C. Hamilton as members of a city estimating board. Conklin and Beer will receive $40 each, Herring, $30, and Hamilton, $10.

Authorized the payment of $10 each to Arthur S. Beck, A. J. Burkhart, and A. B. Reese for their services in adjusting protests filed with the city by property owners on Bartley avenue who contended that assessments against them for paving the street were excessive.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

MORTON DOWNEY, who gets around a bit, observed the other night at the Stork club that a new type of customer seems to be patronizing the nation's top-flight supper clubs. He said he first noticed the "out-of-place" faces in a Pacific coast bistro.

Kilgallen

"A glance was enough to tell you they didn't belong, and you wondered why they were occupying ringside tables in a late spot," he said. "Usually they were plainly dressed, middle-aged, and showed no great evidence of wealth—and always with them were at least two young soldiers or sailors. "At first I thought these new patrons were the result of war-born prosperity, but that theory didn't fit their conservative clothes and dignified behavior. Then in Chicago a few months back, while I was playing the Mayfair room at the Blackstone, I found the answer to the night club phenomenon.

"I saw a gray-haired couple with three marines at their table. The elderly pair was obviously supper-clubbing for the first time, and I couldn't restrain my curiosity. After I had finished my songs I strolled over to them and asked them how they liked the show. They were full of naive appreciation.

"I asked them if this were their first visit to the club, and the two of them nodded. Then the man said, 'We've never been to any night club before. The radio, the movies, and a few friendly gatherings have always been enough social life for us. But we got a letter from our son today. He's in the South Pacific battle area. He wrote us that when he gets back he wants to do three things right away. He wants to spend hours under a shower, eat quarts of ice cream, and loll at the ringside of the best night club.

"That's why we visit night clubs now. Although we can't every well afford it, we take soldier boys out and entertain them. And it's not entirely unselfish on our part, because we enjoy it, and we write long descriptions of what we see in our letters to our boy.'"

Now, when he sees elderly people sitting with husky uniformed kids in the Broadway places, Downey says his mind goes far beyond the night club scene. He knows that in some foxhole overseas, some youthful hero is being feted, by proxy.

The girl in this story dreamed, as so many girls do, of being a star in show business some day. But she wasn't like the youngster pressing her nose against a plate glass window, thrilling at the sight of toys and candy out of her reach. Her family was one of the famous clans of Tin Pan Alley, and she had grown up among Broadway's biggest stars.

Her family knew of her longing, but they also knew the chilly side of show business, and they loved her too much to let her try to challenge Heartbreak Alley. And she knew the wisdom of the advice they gave her, but that didn't erase her desire to try for stardom, and she persuaded her family to let her go into show business if a top-ranking manager saw a good future for her.

So the Broadway-wise relatives consented. They introduced her to a hard-boiled manager, simply as 'Joan Page, a little girl who is boarding with us" —and she performed for him.

Well, she did get the manager, and the jobs, and the applause. She's now the singing star of the Hit Parade and the Broadway stage shows—Joan Edwards, niece of the famous Gus Edwards.

DR. DAFOE DIES

Former Quintuplet Physician Succumbs to Pneumonia.

NORTH BAY, Ontario —(AP)— Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, former physician to the Dionne quintuplets, died today in a hospital here. He was 60 years old.

Dr. Dafoe, who gained international prominence nine years ago when he attended the quintuplets at birth, died at 11 a. m., five minutes after he had been admitted to the hospital.

Dr. D. A. Campbell of North Bay, who was at the bedside, said death was due to pneumonia. Dr. Dafoe had returned to his home at Callander from Toronto yesterday morning.

CORN PLANTING LAGS SHARPLY

Still Chance For Good Crop Despite Huge Unplanted Acreage, Say Experts.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Eighty-five per cent of Ohio's corn acreage still is unplanted but farmers can expect a good crop, Ohio State university agronomists reported.

Crop and extension experts meeting yesterday estimated half the 3,500,000 acres used for corn each year still were not plowed. They agreed, however, that corn planted before June 25 for grain and July 1 for silage probably would produce more feed per acre than any other grain crop.

Farmers planting corn between June 20 and 25 have a 50-50 chance of raising a crop which will mature, they said.

Methods suggested to speed planting included an exchange of labor among neighbors, one planting while the other prepared the ground, and drilling corn instead of check-rowing it.

Increased applications of fertilizer were advised as a growing aid, 300 pounds per acre being recommended for drilled corn and 150 for checked.

A planting delay similar to this year's occurred 10 years ago, extension specialists said, but the crop was good.

Final Ohio planting dates recommended for other crops were:

Sugar beets, June 15, soybeans, July 1, and tomato plants for commercial cannerjes, June 20.

DIES AT HOME

Mrs. Mary Moffett, 73, Taken By Death at Fitchville.

NEW LONDON — Mrs. Mary Moffett, 73, died Tuesday at her home near Fitchville.

Surviving are a son, Elmer, of New London, and three daughters, Mrs. Marie McPherson, Mrs. Bessie Gannett, and Mrs. Ann McFarland, all of North Fairfield.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Friday at the home. Rev. P. J. Garcia, pastor of the Norwalk Universalist church, will officiate. Burial will be in North Fairfield.

Up and Down THE STREET

City council's nine members, who usually find something to disagree about at their monthly sessions, were all in an unusually good mood last night and the body voted unanimously on every piece of legislation. The councilmen, including seven Republicans and two Democrats, passed nearly 20 resolutions and ordinances. Except for a few brief explanatory comments, there was no discussion that even resembled disagreement.

Deskmen at police headquarters, tired of answering wrong numbers, are ready to start a campaign to have their telephone number changed, even if its just one figure that's different. Deskman Claude Watts kept a record the other day of the wrong numbers he received in six hours and they totaled 50. The police number, 1111-6, rings even when a child plays with a dial telephone with the receiver off. Most of the persons who get the police headquarters are so surprised that they hang up without comment, Watts said.

No joke can be funny twice. H. A. Mercer felt today after a practical joker staged a repeat last night of the same joke played on him a year ago. At about 11 p. m. cabs from the five taxi companies began to arrive at 15 minute intervals at the Mercer home, 408 Edgewood road, much to the confusion of the household which had not summoned them. But to complicate events the same thing had occurred a year ago. Either the practical joker is persistent or has a one-track mind. In any event, today Mercer is puzzled.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— An Ohio conference on plans for post-war highway construction will be held here June 24, State Highway Director Hal G. Sours announced today.

KILLER SOUGHT IN FIVE DEATHS

Family of Three, Two Others Are Found Slain on Virginia Farm.

(By United Press)

LEESBURG, Va. — Virginia state police and Loudoun county deputies today sought the murderer or murderers who yesterday shot and beat to death five persons, including three members of the A. Morris Love family.

Federal Bureau of Investigation fingerprint experts inspected the rambling farm where Love's body and that of his son and wife were found along with those of Love's tenant farmer, Walter Russell, and Mrs. Russell. Love's skull and that of his son had been smashed. Bullets from a .22 caliber rifle had been fired at close range into the hearts of the women and into the back of Russell's head.

A traveling salesman, W. T. Blevin, discovered the bodies and reported to sheriff's deputies that as he approached the farm on business, an automobile drove down the Love lane and sped off on the highway.

An elderly Negro who quit work at the farm last week was detained for questioning although officers said they did not believe he was implicated. A check for $1384.94 payable to Love and Love's wallet were found in the pocket of Russell. Police said they believed this to be a "plant" to make them think the case a murder-suicide.

WIFE OF GALION OFFICER DIES

Mrs. Norwood Smith, 32, Had Been Ill Seven Months.

GALION—Ill for the past seven months, Mrs. Norwood Smith, 32, wife of a city patrolman, died Tuesday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Bessinger.

Surviving besides her parents and husband are a son, David; a brother, Woodrow Bessinger, Galion, and a sister, Mary Bessinger, Galion.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. Friday at the Volk funeral home. Rev. H. R. Merle, pastor of First Lutheran church, will officiate. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

ILLNESS FATAL

William Laughery, 78, Taken By Death at Ashland.

ASHLAND—William E. Laughery, 78, died Tuesday afternoon at the home of his son, Ray, in Ashland following a lingering illness.

He was a retired farmer, and had made his home with the son for the past 16 years. Born in Orange township, he lived in this vicinity his entire life.

Besides the son, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Fellos Kohn, Oakwood; two sisters, Mrs. Mary McConnell and Mrs. Charles Metzger, both of near Ashland; four brothers, Henry, near Wellington, Ethriam, near Ashland, Jessie, Ashland, and Edward, Nankin, 15 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 4 p. m. at the Gilbert funeral home with Rev. Charles Mayes, pastor of West Tent Street Brethren church officiating. Burial will be in Nankin cemetery.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

SAN FRANCISCO—Inasmuch as Joe Curran, the absentee second-fronter, taxed me with several omissions from some recent remarks of mine about his draft deferment, I take it is okay to heat up a prominent omission from his open letter in reply to me.

I refer to his conspicuous failure to say anything about the conspiracy that is now cooking to move Harry Bridges, the Australian Communist, on to the eastern seaboard with his longshoremen's union and its man wasting, mock-war union regulations and its revolutionary control, which almost strangled the great port of San Francisco before we got into the war on Russia's side. Bridges is under an order of deportation but you can put that one up behind the clock until you hear that he has actually been sent home and it isn't necessary to believe any Communisit and CIO propaganda about the marvelous job that he is doing in loading ships on the west coast. He isn't turning out near the work he could but for the regulations which he imposed on the shipping industry with the assistance of the party of humanity, calling for much duplication of effort, restriction of the sling-loads and other policies.

Pegler

There is a curious situation, on our two coasts. In the east, Curran's organization of merchant sailors, the National Maritime Union, a party line group, is supreme but Joe Ryan's A. F. of L. union controls the longshoremen and thus the docks. On the west coast there are several sailors' unions but Curran hasn't got a foothold here. The biggest is the Sailors Union of the Pacific, nominally of the AFL, but really an independent outfit, run by Harry Lundeberg, a tough guy of the Jack London tradition, who don't like nobody, least of all Bridges.

Some people thing Lundeberg leans to Trotsky Communism and others that he hankers after old-fashioned Scandinavian Socialism but wherever you file his card you can be sure that he doesn't run to any fires with Bridges or the Moscovite Communists. His union is composed of unlicensed personnel whereas Curran's CIO, pro-Communist outfit is an industrial union that takes them all in except wireless men. Other Pacific unions are the Marine Engineers, the Radio Operators, heavily infested with revolutionary Communism, and the Marine Cooks and Stewards, all of the CIO, the Masters, Mates and Pilots of the AFL and the Marine Firemen, who pay no per capita to any central outfit and seem independent.

So on both coasts, the sailors and the longshoremen belong to opposite and hostile outfits. Now Curran is trying to take advantage of the rotten conditions that have existed for years and years in Ryan's east coast longshoremen's union and shoo them into Bridges' outfit. Thus, in the east, two aggressively pro-Communist unions, one of them under the rule of a proved Communist, Bridges, would have a monopoly of our foreign commerce and would be in a position to stop our shipping to support our soldiers in Europe and Africa if the Communist party, in some future development, should decide that that was the thing to do. In this connection you have to remember, indeed you don't dare forget for an instant, that Curran and Bridges were against this war and against our efforts to get ready for it until Hitler attacked Russia. They were against the draft, against war appropriations, against every one of the preparatory moves and, if they had had their way, we might be invaded now and God only knows how many Americans would have been doomed to die who now won't have to.

So, lately, Ryan has got religion, so to speak, and is trying to tidy up his longshoremen's union and give the suckers a little break. The union has been lousy with racketeers since before the last war. It charges outrageous initiation fees, some as high as $500, and in one area in New York, an uncommonly greedy and low-grade gorilla, whom Ryan knows all about, shakes down the poor longies for tickets to the number racket and makes them buy their grog from his connections. That was the way things used to be in San Francisco and that is why the longshoremen here turned to Bridges when he came along to establish hiring halls and wipe out the corrupt system.

How serious he is about cleaning up or whether he can succeed is just a guess. I think he really wants to make some reforms because he is a Catholic and Communism both afloat and ashore on the eastern coast would be bad business from the sandpoint of any Catholic, besides which I am sure Joe now realizes that if he doesn't clean up, Bridges and Curran will just push him and his union into the river.

Out of the meeting of Ohio high school track coaches in Columbus last Saturday comes, belatedly, the word that the Mansfield Relays will be resumed after the war.

Harold Lisk of International News Service sends along the word in this manner: quote—The coaches reported the Mansfield Relays, oldest in Ohio, will be revived when peace returns—unquote.

This is something that has been hinted in this column several times recently, and now I am hot on the heels of the papa of the Relays. Harry the Merry Mehock, to find out just what he told the coaches in Columbus. Did he really break down and promise post-war revival of the event?

Question is: was Mehock merely lining the boys up for possible revival of the Relays, or did he come right out and say he'd put the Relays on again?

Mehock is a great guy for lining the boys up, months and maybe even years ahead of time. He used to take Tyger trackmen to Pittsburg, you'll remember, just to sign up a lot of Pennsylvania schools for the Relays, and made trips to West Virginia and Michigan months ahead of time for the same purpose.

And it broke the Merry one's heart when the principals association said those out-of-state boys couldn't come here any more.

"There are just two leagues—the majors and the minors," said Mehock, when he called the Relays off a year ago. "And I don't want to play in the minors." Maybe the boys have convinced him the Mansfield Relays, with just Ohio schools, would still be big league.

Here's the Mehock on the phone now.

"What did you tell those guys in Columbus anyhow?" I ask him, ""Did you say you were going to start the Relays again?"

"No, I didn't commit myself," he responds. "I told some of them that we might start the Relays again some time. I had to tell 'em something. They were all asking about it.

"I don't know whether we'll try it again or not."

And that is a direct quote from a guy who admits he doesn't know his own mind on the subject.

So I will attempt to read his mind, and predict that some day the Relays will be revived again. The fact that "they were all asking about it," will convince Mehock some day that it's a good idea.

Rival track coaches have been patting Harry on the back all spring, and after so many bows, even the Merry Mehock can be expected to see that Ohio coaches really want the Mansfield Relays.

Before it's too late, let's announce that Howard Herrick, high-scoring dash man, is the captain of the Tyger trackmen for the season just ended.

As in other major sports at the high school, captains in track are honorary, with no elected captain carrying the burden during the season.

Herrick was named captain just before the district meet.

Mack Denies Use Of Dead Baseballs

PHILADELPHIA (UP) - Connie Mack said today that charges by Steve O'Neill, Detroit Tigers' manager, that dead balls were used in the second game of Monday's double header with the Athletics were "farfetched."

O'Neill protested to American league president that the A's victory was due to "dead ball." He said "it might or might not have been an accident."

* * *

Mack said all balls are delivered to American league umpires wrapped and kept under lock and key until used.

"If he had wanted to be unsportsmanlike and intentionally submit dead balls," Mack added, "we would have done it in the first game—not the second." The A's dropped the first game.

Dodgers, Cards Put On Show

Put on Pennant Fight Early In Springtime.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(AP Sports Writer)

THE National League is expected to have a stupendous scramble for the pennant every fall as a matter of course, but this year the Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals are staging a spring show that may very well dwarf anything that can happen later.

Usually at this early date there are several teams that must be regarded as pennant possibilities. But the Dodgers and Cardinals know they are the only two teams in the league with any reasonable chance of winning and they are counting the games they play against each other this spring just as crucial as the ones that will come at the close of the campaign.

After dividing a four-game series at Brooklyn last month and a doubleheader in St. Louis Monday, they waded into each other again yesterday and at the end of 12 innings of almost unbelievable baseball the raging Redbirds had an 11-9 victory and were within half of a game of first place.

The two teams made 35 hits, 20 by St. Louis and 15 by Brooklyn, paraded a total of nine pitchers to the mound, and passed the lead back and forth like a hot tip on the second front.

Finally it was a two-run homer by Harry (Little Dixie) Walker, his first of the season, that decided the game.

The two rivals are ticketed for the final game of the series tonight and on the result will depend whether the Dodgers or the Cardinals are in first place tomorrow.

Pittsburgh beat the Boston Braves 5-4 in 14 innings and the Cincinnati Reds stopped the New York Giants 3-1 to set up a triple tie for third place between the Reds, Braves and Pirates.

The Philadelphia Phillies pounced on the last place Chicago Cubs for their second triumph in three games 7-2 with old Si Johnson pitching seven-hit ball.

Action in the American League was limited to two night games in which Washington whipped the Cleveland Indians 3-2 in ten innings and the Detroit Tigers came from behind to beat the Philadelphia Athletics 5-3, ending a seven-game winning streak for Jesse Flores.

Blues Nose Dive To A. A. Basement

(By Associated Press)

Kansas City's nose dive in the American Association race touched bottom today.

The Blues, 1942 pennant winners, needed just 13 days to drop from third place to last. In that time they lost 10 of 12 games played, half of them by one run margins.

They shifted places with idle Louisville yesterday by losing to Milwaukee, 5 to 1.

* * *

In yesterday's only other game, Minneapolis came to life after going scoreless for 20 consecutive innings and pounded out an 8 to 1 victory over St. Paul.

Third place Columbus engaged the Great Lakes team but lost in a slugging match, 16 to 8.

Terry Moore Dons Army Uniform

BALBOA, Canal Zone —(INS)— Terry Moore former star of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball nine, today is a private in the army air forces.

"I feel like a rookie in a training camp," Terry grinned yesterday as he was inducted in Balboa. "I'll stick to the same old system—stay out of the manager's way until I find out what the score is."

Today he was busy studying the basic field manual to familiarize himself with the rules of the new game he has taken up. He is scheduled to start his basic training after a four-day leave.

SCHOOLS PLAY FOR CITY SOFTBALL TITLE

Mansfield elementary school softball leagues will have their "little world series" today when Brinkerhoff, champion of the South Side, meets Bowman, North End title holder, on the Bowman field, at 1 p. m.

Both teams are undefeated. Harry Mehock will umpire the game.

CHAMP TO WED

PHILADELPHIA - (INS)— Peggy McCloskey former Philadelphia district girl's golf champion, today disclosed her engagement to Lt. Joseph R. Isner, jr., navy pilot who rescued Captain Eddie Rickenbacker in the South Pacific.

REMATCHED

HOLLYWOOD — (UP) — A rematch between Willie Joyce and Henry Armstrong, who broke Joyce's jaw in their last match but dropped the decision, has been scheduled for June 26 at Gilmore stadium. Promoter Joseph Lynch said today.

Rookie Starring for Cards

Lou Klein . . . a closeup
Same guy . . . as a fielder

ROOKIE Louis Frank Klein, jr., second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, is clicking in his first year in the big time. Klein, batting and fielding well, came up to the Cards this season from Columbus of the American Association. Last season Klein was only mediocre at the bat, hitting .249, a big comedown from his .367 bat mark the year before. At the present Klein is in a hitting streak, having hit safely in 17 consecutive games up to May 28. The Cardinal rookie is 25 years old, stands 5 feet 10 and weighs 160 poounds. He is a righthanded batter.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Comeback record . . . Ernie Lanigan, the International league's historian, figures this probably still stands as a record baseball comeback. . . . Back in 1888 George Haddock, one-time battery partner of Connie Mack, lost 20 straight games for the Troy, N. Y., club. Then he went to Washington (and no cracks, please about the Senators still getting that kind of hurler), and lost two more there. . . . In 1891 and 1892 the same guy had bounced back to become a 30-game winner with Boston in the American Association and with Brooklyn. . . . Another record, maybe?

RIGHTEOUS INDIGNATION

When the Chicago White Sox blew into Philadelphia recently, the clubhouse attendant chalked the name "Frisch" on Jimmy Dykes' locker. . . . Jimmy promptly exploded. "Take that off of there," he bellowed. I'm no Frisch. That Frisch is the kind of fellow who is mean to umpires and gets thrown out of ball games."

Vince After Homer Honors

Oldest DiMaggio Ties Keller of Yankees.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK —(UP)— Intriguing indeed is Vince DiMaggio's valiant effort to uphold the baseball prestige of his family while brothers Joe and Dominic are in service.

Vince, now 30, had been merely a "walk-on" in the diamond drama until this season—a performer obscured by the brilliance of his younger brothers, the lads to whom he taught the game in San Francisco.

But Vince centerfielder of the Pirates, is out after records now. Previously he was content to mosey along in mediocrity. He never envied the success of Joe and Dom with the Yankees and Red Sox, respectively. He was gratified that his outfielder brothers could bring such fame to the Italian family of fisherman's wharf.

With jolting Joe and bespectacled Dom out of the game now, Vince feels that it's up to him to sustain the family prestige that they built up.

That's why 30-year-old Vince is tied for the major league lead in two batting departments—the same Vince who always had difficulty hitting major league pitching, the same Vince who in 1938 established an all-time major record for strikouts 134. He was with the Boston Bees that season, the year after brother Joe of the Yanks had won the American circuit home run crown.

Pittsburgh's centerfielder bagged his sixth homer of the season yesterday, leaving him tied for honors in that department with Charlie Keller of the Yanks. His blow, with two men aboard, brought his runs-batted-in total of 30, a figure equalled only by Billy Herman of the Dodgers.

Vince probably will be able to play out the season. He is married and has a five-year-old daughter, Joanne Marie. He is in 3-A.

Vince said last night, "It will give me the biggest kick of my career if I can win the National league championship for runs batted in or for home runs—or both of them. But I'll tell you two fellows who would get an even greater kick out of it—Joe and Dom. I think I've got a good chance. I'm trying harder than ever before, and it seems to have improved my hitting."

Can the all-time strikeout "chumpeen" become a batting king at 30?—while carrying on for his absent brothers, who are carrying on for Uncle Sam.

All boys who have won letters in any high school sport are invited to attend the party.

Committee in charge of arrangements consists of William Snowden, Frank Rachel and Louis Nameth.

WANT GUNDER HAEGG FOR CHICAGO RACE

CHICAGO —(INS)— Gunder Haegg, Sweden's champion distance runner, was sought today to appear in a two-mile race with Greg Rice, former Notre Dame star in a twilight track meet at Northwestern university's Dyche stadium June 23 under the auspices of the Central A. A. U.

Herman Fischer and J. Lyman Bingham of the Central A. A. U. said they also would try to obtain the entries of other midwest and Pacific coast stars for the race as they return home from the National A. A. U. meet in New York June 20.

BEULAH RACE MEETING BEAT 1942 FIGURES

COLUMBUS—(INS)— Despite unfavorable weather, the spring meeting at nearby Beulah park, concluded Monday, was more profitable than last year, track officials announced today.

Race fans poured an average of $41,000 per day into the mutuel machines as compared with an average of $12,000 last spring. The biggest day was Monday's Memorial day when the handle totaled $121,554, a new record for the track.

CHICAGO —(AP)— The National Collegiate Athletic association's 46th annual golf tournament will be held at Chicago's Olympia Fields country club June 28, 29 and 30, it was announced yesterday.

Indians In Second Division

Clean Out the Cellar, Tribe's Falling Fast.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Cleveland Indians were out of the American League's first division today—a definite indication that summer is near.

Manager Lou Boudreau's self-styled "team to beat" for the pennant lost to the Washington Nationals 3 to 2 in 10 innings last night and dropped to fifth place. A victory would have moved the tribe into a second place deadlock with the Nats, two games behind the pace-setting New York Yankees. A little more than a week ago the same Indians topped the circuit, but they have won only two of their nine eastern engagements.

Relief pitcher Ray Poat allowed only one hit in the three innings he worked but his wildness enabled the lone hit to produce the winning run in the overtime session.

Poat walked Alex Kampouris and Jake Early after retiring two batters and substitute shortstop Ellis Cleary singled home the deciding tally.

The Indians close the series with another after-dark contest tonight. Jack Salveson, who seems destined for asignment as a regular starter, tries for his third straight triumph. Milo Candini, a rookie right hander, is his opponent.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Cincinnati fandom likes its baseball but the Redleg management is convinced the fans prefer their 6 o'clock dinner a mite more.

The front office points to yesterday as an example. The Red and the New York Giants played a twilight game, starting at 5:30 p. m., and only 1,155 of the faithful were on hand to see their heroes spank the Giants 3 to 1.

And a pretty fair sort of a ball game it was too. Veteran Ray Starr allowed the New Yorkers five hits but kept them well scattered. The Reds got only five hits off Johnny Wittig but they got them when they needed 'em.

Eric Topton, Cincinnati left fielder, hit a long homer over the scoreboard in left field in the fifth inning—his third round-tripper of the season.

Wittig was removed in the eighth for a pinch hitter and his successor, Ace Adams, the league's No. 1 fireman, gave up nothing more than a loud foul.

The Reds and the Giants finish the present series today. Harry Feldman, Giant righthander, is slated to do the pitching for Mel Ott and Manager Bill McKechnie told Bucky Walters to get a good night's sleep in order to report for work today.

Fight Fans Hoot Galento Victory

TAMPA, Fla. —(UP)— Two-ton Tony Galento waddled happily along the comeback trail today following a bloodless 25-second knockout victory over Herbie Katz of Brooklyn before 5,000 hooting customers.

The New Jersey tavern keeper, returning to the ring after a two-year layoff, lumbered across the ring at the opening gong last night and met Katz with a Sunday round-house left that dropped him for a nine-count.

Katz arose, Galento fired a short right at point blank range and the "fight" was over. Disappointed fans whistled and yelled their derision as the unconscious Katz was carried out of the ring.

Galento weighed 242 pounds, Katz 185.

Willie Gilzenberg, Galento's manager, announced that the human beer barrel would fight a wrestler known as the "Golden Terror" in Chattanooga, Tenn., next Monday before returning to his training camp at Summit, N. J., to continue working out for future fights.

Buster Is Real Fence Buster

Jim (Buster) Maynard . . . homer hitter.

By Central Press.

BUSTER'S busting 'em.

Buster is Jim (Buster) Maynard, sophomore outfielder of the New York Giants.

The husky gardener isn't really threatening Mel Ott's position as No. 1 slugger of the Giants, but at the moment he is leading the league in home runs.

By mid-May Mr. Maynard had banged out four home runs, not a sensational pace, but as many as he hit all last season in 89 games with the Giants.

A righthanded batter and a native of Henderson, N. C., Maynard broke into pro baseball with South Boston in 1937, hitting for an even .300. The next season he spent with Tarboro and then moved up to Richmond.

With Richmond in 1940 he slammed out 30 home runs and batted .337, enough to attract Giant officials. He was brought up at the tag end of the season, getting into seven games.

He needed more seasoning so he spent 1941 and part of last season with Jersey City of the International league. He was anything but a sensation with that club. In 89 games with the Giants last season he batted but .247.

He has been playing regularly this year and apparently has found his batting eye.

Young Dutch Reuther Hurls

Righthander Catches Eye of Pro Scouts.

By FRANK NEILL

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—It took a second World War to start a second "Dutch" Ruether along the glory road of baseball.

One of the most colorful lefthanders in major league history, the original "Dutch" was a direct by-product of World War I. Catapulting into the Big Time after a season of sensational twirling for an Army ball club at Camp Lewis, he subsequently enjoyed a hectic career in both the National and American leagues and the Pacific Coast circuit.

Today the ghost of old "Dutch" Ruether is one of the hottest college pitchers in the far West.

Taking up where his flamboyant old man left off "Dutch" Ruether, jr., 19-year-old hurler for Occidental college is currently burning up the Southern California Intercollegiate diamond loop.

Winning six of seven starts, he has pitched little Occidental into first place in the college league. Only the fencebusters of the University of Southern California were able to fathom an amazing change of pace and sharpbreaking curves that "Dutch Junior" inherited from his illustrious pappy.

The old man, you'll remember, pitched in the 1926 World Series for the New York Yankees. He also played for the Chicago Cubs, Cincinnati and Washington. Later he was a league-leading pitcher for San Francisco, Oakland and Seattle in the Pacific Coast circuit.)

In his first attempt at the game, Young "Dutch" already has demonstrated the same baseball "sense" that made Big "Dutch" an all-time diamond great.

He is thorough and easy-going. Bill Anderson, Occidental coach, described him as the most "steady and reliable" college twirler he has ever handled.

Where the old man was a southpaw, "Dutch Junior" is a righthander. And he isn't a very big guy—only 5 feet 9 inches and weighing about 150 pounds.

A couple of Pacific coast league teams have a finger aimed at the kid. But because of the war, young "Dutch" hasn't made any athletic plans. A sophomore, majoring in business administration, he is a member of Uncle Sam's Naval Reserve—and he expects to see active service before stepping into organized baseball.

So you'll probably have to wait until the Allies send a trio of foul balls named Adolf, Benito and Hirohito to the showers before "Dutch" Ruether, jr., really concentrates on his heritage.

Cardinals Get Phil Slugger

Litwhiler May Be What They Need For Title.

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK—(INS)—The St. Louis Cardinals have made a move toward perpetuating their role as world champions at approximately that very moment when it began to appear likely that their loss of Enos Slaughter and Terry Moore from the outfield would let the Brooklyn Dodgers or somebody slip into the next World series. The Cards now have acquired the gent known as Dangerous Dan Litwhiler. This may be the turning point of the National league pennant race.

So far this season the Dodgers have managed to make a pace-setting race of it, but by this time their lead has dwindled to a half game, and the trade announced last night by Owner Bill Cox of the Phillies, sending Litwhiler to the Cards, will return to the champions some of the punch they lost to the war.

With other clubs in the league needing talent as badly as they do in these times, the wonder of it all is that they let the one and only A-1, 14-carat, double-dipped, streamlined and ball-pounding star of the Phils land with the team that is defending the championship with a fine pitching staff and needs only a little touching up here and there—such as obtaining Dangerous Dan—to breeze in.

From the Cards' standpoint the husky outfielder was the key man in the transaction, although they also acquired title to Outfielder Earl Naylor in the deal, and gave up Outfielders Coaker Triplett, Dain Clay and Buster Adams. There is no suggestion of the trade being made to set the stage for still another transaction. The Phils are pursuing a policy of getting many men for a few—especially because of their recent slump—and that swung it.

At the moment Litwhiler is in a slump with the rest of the Phillies, with his batting average down to a meagre .273, but it wasn't ever thus and at 26 he still can go—if he can get started again.

A brief sketch of the young man, a former schoolteacher from Ringtown, Pa., is in order.

He came to the Phils for spring training in 1940, was shunted off to Wilkes-Barre and bounced back in September to set that season's National league record by hitting safely in 21 straight games, a mark tied at the finish of the campaign by Enos Slaughter. Litwhiler's batting average was .345 for his brief, but brisk and busy run with the Phils and set him up for a return to the club next season.

In 1941, he batted .305 in 151 games and hit 18 home runs, at least one in each park in the circuit. His average dropped to .271 last season, spiced by only nine homers, but he made up for that afield by setting a major league record—no errors in 151 games.

He is a right-hander and is slated to play left field for the champions, with the likelihood being that in his new surroundings he will begin to live up to that Dangerous Dan handle they hung on him in 1940. That is, still assuming that all this won't lead to other trades. Owner Cox of the Phils is pestering around through the west now on a shopping tour to bolster his club as much as possible before the June 15 trading deadline, and some insist he has worked out a deal with the Cubs, although none is sufficiently bold to suggest that Litwhiler is going to be let go by the Cards in one of those three-cornered things in which finally everybody is trying to find what uniform a given player is to windup in—like what shell is the pea under.

Rather, this one seems to be merely part of Owner Cox's particular new deal in Philly, which is to get a maximum for a minimum in quantity.

Naturally, he presumes he's getting some quality too, but in any case has let go of four players so far and in return has acquired a dozen.

LONDON—The strike of coal orkers in the United States en- ged the attention of Great itain almost to exclusion of the ar today, and a check through e rank and file of United ates troops stationed here in eparation for the invasion of rope found it a sore topic for scussions.

Here is what a few had to say:

Pvt. Burkie Kosanbich, McKees- rt, Pa.: "They should throw the strikers in the front line, ke the United States army sec- d corps out of Africa and put e strikers in the front line."

Corp. Paul W. Augenstein, Mar- ta, O.: "They are holding up e war effort and helping the is just that much more."

Pfc. G. Miller, Newark, N. J., member of the Ranger Com- ndo corps: "Let 'em come over re for a while. We'll go to work the mines."

Pvt. Earl Gardner of New York y, also a Ranger: "It's pretty tural to want more dough. But w they should keep working. ere'll be plenty of time to argue er the war."

Staff Sgt. Charles Geyer, of ison, O.: "There should be some y of settling this without walk- out."

A dissenter was found in Sgt. arl Mendell, of Bellevue, Ky. le said: "I am no union man nd I want to get home as uch as anyone. But the min- s have a right to strike."

Capt. Earl Riley, Greensburg, I., a pilot with the Eighth ited States army air force said castically: 'It's a pleasure to ht for people like that. We lly love it."

Lieut. William Martin, McKen- , Tex.: "I'd like to see how fast y'd go back to work if they re chased by a couple of cke-Wulfs."

DEADLINE SET ON PRICE FILE

Following the announcement of the ceiling on restaurant food and mixed drink prices which will become effective June 12, Charles C. Beelman, chairman of the ration board, said today that all restaurants, cafes, delicatessens and soda fountains which have not filed a copy of their prices for the week of April 4 to 10 must do so by June 12.

The names of these dealers who have not filed copies of their prices with the local board by this date will be sent to the enforcement division of the Office of Price Administration in Cleveland, Beelman said.

CITY BUDGET REQUESTS IN

Departments Call For Total of $331,383, or $7,725 Less Than Last Year.

Tentative 1944 budget estimates calling for a total of $331,383 for operation of city departments next year were submitted to Mayor W. J. Locke and council's budget committee. The estimated total is $7,725 under the 1943 operating estimates.

The mayor said he would go over the figures with Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff and the council budget committee within a few days. The estimates are scheduled to go before council for approval at the July meeting, but Auditor Paul L. Kelley said the figures may undergo revision before council gets them.

Following council's action on the budget request it will be submitted to the county budget commission before July 20 for final approval or adjustments to bring it in line with anticipated revenue for next year.

Minor reductions in most of the city departments' requests account for the major part of the $7,725 drop in the tentative 1944 figure. The fire department request for next year was boosted to $81,750 from $73,360 this year.

Other 1944 requests include:

Parks, $28,700; engineering, $10,000; relief, $20,200; health, $13,223; police department, $59,130; municipal court, $3,550; municipal court clerks, $8,910; health inspection, $6,615; council, $3,058;; council clerk, $2,600; mayor, $5,040; auditor, $5,450; treasurer, $1,150; solicitor, $3,560.

PAY DEDUCTIONS ARE LIKELY TO PUZZLE WORKERS

Here's Explanation of How Pay-Go Plan Will Affect Ordinary Paycheck.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Mr. John Smith, taxpayer, may be puzzled when his employer starts deducting 20 per cent from his pay July 1 under the proposed new pay-as-you-go tax bill, unless he understands the scheme of current payment.

First of all, he has exemptions so that the government does not take 20 per cent of his total wage. Secondly, to make things easier for employers the bill provides for deductions on the basis of average deductions.

If John Smith is married and has two children, here is what his employer does beginning July 1:

If his wage is between $25 and $30 a week his employer withholds 50 cents a week and pays it to the government. If his wage is $30 to $40 the withholding is 70 cents a week; if $40 to $50 a week, $1.80; if $50 to $60 a week, $3.80; if $60 to $70 a week, $7: if $70 to $80 a week, $9; if $80 to $90 a week, $11; if $90 to $100 a week, $13.

This 20 per cent withholding on wages is above an exemption of $1,248, or $24 a week, because he is married, and $312 a year for each dependent child.

The withholding tax does not necessarily pay Mr. John Smith's tax bill entirely. The government figures that if he makes less than $8,500 a year, the withholding will cover his taxes but if he makes more it will not.

His payment this year will be on a little different basis than next year. Presumably he paid taxes on March 15 and will pay his second installment June 15. These payments, which were made on a 1942 tax return will apply on his 1943 taxes.

If he makes over $3,500 a year, or if he has outside income of over $100 a year, the government expects him to file a declaration on Sept. -5.

At that time he adds up his first two tax installment payments and the 20 per cent withholding on Sept. 15.

He balances this against the taxes due on his income up to Sept. 15. If he owes the government money he is expected to pay it Sept. 15 and thus be current on his taxes.

He will make another such declaration on Dec. 15 and, if need be, make a final settlement next March 15.

CITE GREATER NEED FOR BLOOD DONORS IN RED CROSS APPEAL

An appeal to Mansfielders to give blood needed after the Tunisian campaign, was made today by Mrs. William Layton and Mrs. Ephriam Brown, co-chairmen of the local blood donor registration committee.

"After a victory such as we have had in Africa the people tend to think that there will be no great need for blood donation when actually the need is greater since the lives of thousands of wounded men depend on blood plasma," a recent statement issued by the national Red Cross says.

Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Layton said today that of the 733 cards which had been sent out for donors to the unit which will be here June 11 and 12 only 176 have been returned. At least 400 cards should be returned so that, with the ordinary amount of cancellations, 280 pints can be obtained during the two days.

The plan of the registration committee has been to set up a program so that interested persons may donate once every four months. This time those who donated blood in February are being asked to give again. If they do not respond some of the willing donors will be giving blood too frequently, the chairman said.

Those who have received cards are urged to return them as soon as possible to facilitate scheduling of appointments.

WORRIED AT RUHR BOMBINGS, HE PUTS ARSENIC IN FAMILY SOUP

(By United Press)

CLEVELAND—William F. Santelmann, 41, worried over British bombings of the German Ruhr, spiced a package of dehydrated soup with arsenic and succeeded in killing himself and a son and making his wife and daughter seriously ill, a coroner's report disclosed today.

Coroner S. R. Gerber said that Santelmann, German-born naturalized citizen, put arsenic into mushroom soup shortly before the family dined last Thursday. He and his son, William, jr., 17, died. His wife, Antonia, and daughter, Agate, 13, were made critically ill. Two other sons who did not dine were unharmed.

Gerber said Santelmann's action was due to "mental unbalance brought on by worry over relatives and friends suffering in the bombing of German cities in the Ruhr."

Santelmann lately had been worried about the bombings in the vicinity of Dusseldorf, where Mrs. Santelmann had been born, Gerber said.

He had told neighbors, Gerber said, that he "could see no reason for the Allies killing innocents in that city." Gerber said he had established no definite motive, but was satisfied Santelmann had added the arsenic to the soup in an effort to destroy himself and his family.

Gerber said that Santelmann had been under surveillance by federal agents, but FBI agents would not comment.

HOSPITAL LOSES COURT DECISION

State Tribunal Rules Trustees Liable Only For Emergency Hospitalization.

In a case appealed from Richland county common pleas court, the Ohio supreme court today held that township trustees are liable only for emergency hospitalization of an indigent residing in the township, in the absence of a contract specifying otherwise.

The case involves an action filed in the Richland county court several months ago by Mansfield General hospital against Jefferson township trustees to require the trustees to pay for the hospitalization of an indigent patient admitted from their township without an order from them. Common pleas court held the trustees liable for the hospital bill.

The trustees contended that charitable hospitals cannot shift their duty to care for indigents; that existing statutes placing the burden of poor relief contemplate only temporary relief, and that their liability for temporary relief cannot be extended to include hospitalization.

Carrying the fight to the court of appeals, the trustees were found by that court to be liable only for emergency hospitalization, in the absence of contract, and the supreme court upheld the decision.

MAP PROGRAM

Boulevards Council Studying Street Repairs.

Unable to pass emergency legislation because two of the six members were absent from a meeting last night, South Boulevards village council is expected to take action on a street repair program at a special meeting within the next week, Harry B. Scoles, village clerk, said today.

With a number of the villages' gravel streets badly damaged during the past winter, village officials are having trouble finding workers to do the repair job, Scoles said.

A delegation of property owners appeared at last night's session to complain of flooded basements. Scoles said council had storm sewer extensions under consideration, but the labor shortage again prevented immediate action.

SHE'S ANGRY AT OFFER OF BRIBE

Woman Hangs Up In Ear of Man Who Offers $2,000.

TOLEDO —(INS)— Mrs. Lulu M. Mersing, whose husband, Charles, was killed in a holdup 10 years ago, told Prosecutor Joel Rhinefort today that she "hung up in the ear" of a man who telephoned her an offer of $2,000 if she would not protest the parole of four men serving life sentences for the murder.

"I could use the $2,000," said Mrs. Mersing, who operates a rooming house, "but the offer was an insult to me."

George Czapcinski was convicted of first degree murder and Edward Kaminski, John Obarski and Felix Kasprzak pleaded guilty. They entered Ohio penitentiary Nov. 28, 1933.

SOLONS URGE CULVERT JOB

Councilmen Propose Repair of Middle Park Channel; Dangers Cited.

Repair of the north side of a culvert under Park avenue west at Middle park and the construction of protective railings along West park drive at the park and on Maple street at Maple lake were proposed to city council last night by Councilmen Clifford G. Knarr and Roy Vaughn.

The needed improvements were not offered for action by council, but both Knarr and Vaughn said action probably will be necessary soon.

Knarr said the Park avenue culvert will go to pieces unless something is done to repair it, while Vaughn pointed out that "a car will dive off into Maple lake one of these nights unless a guard rail is erected at the north side of the lake to protect traffic."

Council received and filed petitions seeking sanitary sewers along Central avenue from Grace street to the city limits and along Woodhill road, grading and paving with asphalt of Elmwood drive off West Fourth street, and to eliminate parking on the south side of East Fifth street from Adams to Elm streets.

Kallmerten and Baer registered a protest against the city's plan to assess the cost of a proposed East Fifth street resurfacing project by the foot front. The firm has a 170-foot frontage on Fifth street.

NEW RECRUITERS

WAVES - SPAR Officers Take Over at Station In City.

Two new WAVES - SPAR recruiting officers will take over the temporary recruiting station at 37 Park avenue west for the remainder of the "Week With the Waves," recruiting campaign being conducted in Mansfield this week.

Lieut. (j. g.) Mary Arbenz of the SPARS, who is in charge of the Cleveland recruiting district, and Yeoman Alice Berg of the WAVES, will replace Seaman Marjorie French of the SPARS and Ensign Velma Varner of the WAVES who have been in the recruiting office since Monday.

During the hours the temporary recruiting station is open, 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., the WAVES and SPARS stationed there will explain the 70 different jobs and 30 classifications open to women who join either of these services.

"Next to wives, sweethearts and letters from home, among things our soldiers mention most is Coca-Cola. Of course, our fighting men meet up with Coke many places overseas. But Coca-Cola got there first. Yes siree, Coca-Cola has been a globe-trotter since way back when. It has been sold in more than 100 foreign lands.

"Even with war and so many Coca-Cola bottling plants in enemy-occupied countries, our fighting men are delighted to find Coca-Cola being bottled right on the spot in so many places around the globe. And do they go for it when they find it! Who doesn't?"

GOSH, THAT TRUCK CERTAINLY SPLATTERED US MAC
I'LL GET SOME TOWELS
WELL, THAT DID PROVE OUR TEMPERS WERE EQUALLY BAD
THAT WAS FUNNY WHEN YOU COME TO THINK OF IT HO! HO! HO!
IT WAS, HAW HAW! HAW
TILLIE, THIS PROVES OUR SENSES OF HUMOR ARE EQUAL, TOO
YOU'RE A DEAR, MAC.

Borrow at Household without fuss or bother on your salary, furniture or car—without endorsers. Pay charges only for the actual time you have the money. Example: a $50 loan repaid in 6 monthly instalments of $9.24 each costs $5.44, but if repaid in one month costs only $1.50. Payments include charges at Household's rate of 3% per month on that part of a balance not exceeding $100, 2½% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100 but not exceeding $300, and ½% per month on any remainder.

STOCK PRICES HOLD STEADY ON SLOW MART

Retail Store Sales Continue Ahead of Last Year But Miss Seasonal Boost.

NEW YORK—Stock prices were steady and market activity slow today, a few leaders attempting mild advance.

Among those edging fractionally higher at the start were General Electric, General Motors, Texas Co., Johns-Manville, American Airlines and Liggett & Myers "B."

Holders of merchandising shares studied the department of commerce report that retail stores sales made less-than-seasonal progress in April although running an average of 13 per cent ahead of a year ago in dollar volume.

CHICAGO—(AP)—In a very quiet opening trade grains slumped minor fractions on favorable crop reports today.

Wheat started unchanged to ¼ lower, July $1.43⅞, Sept. $1.43⅞-¾, and rye was ¼ to ⅛ higher, July 95⅛.

3 FACE MORE SERIOUS COUNTS

Howard DeWeil, 18, of Greenwich; Arthur Bridges, 18, Mansfield R. D. 2, and Samuel Bonecutter, 17, Hillsboro R. D. 1, held in the Richland county jail for the past week on auto theft charges have been turned over to the sheriff of Franklin county to stand charges of armed robbery, Sheriff Frank Robinson said.

The three stole three automobiles, a gun, and a watch before they were picked up by authorities in Defiance, the sheriff said. They will face charges in Columbus for allegedly stealing a taxi after threatening the owner with a gun.

URGE PARLEY

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The Ohio district of the American Lutheran church today proposed an all-American Lutheran convention to consider post-war mission work.

Delegates to the denomination's state convention adopted a resolution urging that the meeting be held and that all Lutheran groups in North and South America send representatives.

6-MONTH SEWER CHARGE LIFTED

Council Takes Final Actibn on Remittal, Presenting City With $25,000 'Gift.'

the balance actually is only about $15,000 and it is not expected to show an increase now that a half year's revenue will be lost to the city.

He added that the Chamber of Commerce estimate apparently was based on anticipated revenue for the entire year minus normal expenditures.

Council last night appropriated $1,000 from the sewer fund for the repair of sludge pumps in the sanitary sewer system.

The sewer bills for the first-half of the year are due from July 1 to 15 in the east side of the city, those for the west side from Oct. 1 to 15, while industrial and commercial bills are payable from July 1 to 10.

Councilman Roy Vaughn suggested that the sewer rental bills be mailed as usual but that they be stamped "cancelled" or "remitted" when they go out so patrons will know how much they are saving.

The remittal will benefit all residential, commercial and industrial users in the city who would ordinarily be assessed charges during the period from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1943.

Porch, sponsor of the measure, said the rental was suspended because it appeared certain that the city would not be able to get materials for a contemplated $35,000 sewer project in the south end of the city and would therefore not have immediate use for a large balance in the sewer fund.

JOINS SHELBY CROSSING PLEA

Council Passes Resolution Requesting Flashers at B. & O. on Route 39.

Joining Shelby city officials in a move to reduce the hazard to motor traffic at the Baltimore and Ohio grade crossing on State Route 39 between Shelby and Springmill, city council last night voted a resolution asking the railroad to install flashers at the crossing.

The crossing was the scene of an accident April 30 in which three Mansfield young people were killed when their car collided with a freight train. The crossing is protected only by reflector signals which stand out when automobile lights flash on them.

In requesting the railroad for action on crossing protection, council pointed out that motor traffic is heavy over Route 39 and a number of major accidents have occurred at the crossing.

Shelby council passed a similar resolution early in May and asked the Mansfield council to join in the drive for better signals.

Clerk R. R. Black of council was instructed to send a copy of the resolution to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company.

LOW BIDDER

Mansfield Company Gets Contract For Mt. Gilead Project.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company was announced today as the low bidder on a resurfacing project on U. S. Route 42, north of Mt. Gilead.

The Mansfield firm's bid was $44,965 for resurfacing 4.54 miles of highway with bituminous materials, the state highway department said. It is expected that the project contract will be let within a few days.

MINERS' STRIKE GOES TO FDR BY ORDER OF WLB

Board Orders Negotiations Halted as Soldiers Demand Pits Reopen.

from London to Honolulu clamored for a quick end to the general walkout in the nation's coal fields. Congress meanwhile also prepared to take drastic action to curb strikes.

The WLB, which had been consistently defied by Lewis during the coal wage negotiations leading to the strike, sent telegrams to Lewis and the coal operators.

The board said that any wage adjustments reached while the miners remained on strike would not be considered or approved by the board.

Spokesmen for the board said that any agreement reached now would be in effect a "shot-gun wedding" agreement because the coal strike has the effect of "leveling a gun at the heads of the parties involved in the negotiations."

And then the WLB stated: "The board is referring this case to President Roosevelt for such action as he deems appropriate."

The text of the board's telegram signed by Wayne L. Morse, WLB compliance officer, follows:

"By unanimous vote of the national War Labor board the board declares that the existing strikes and stoppages of work in the nation's coal fields constitutes an unwarranted violation of the no-strike pledge and a defiance of the board's directive order of May 25, 1943.

(Editor's Note: The board's May 25 directive had ordered the miners and operators to resume direct negotiations on their wage dispute and then report back to the board on June 9 what results had been reached.)

"Therefore, in conformance with the procedures of the War Labor board which have been uniformly applied in all past cases in which either party violated the no-strike, no-lock out pledge and defied a directive order of the board, it is hereby directed that all negotiations between the parties on the issues referred to them by the board's directive order of May 25, 1943, in this case shall cease immediately until the mine workers return to work in compliance with the board's directive order of May 25, 1943.

"The board further notifies the parties that any agreement reached by the parties while the workers are on strike and under the pressure of this strike coercion will not be considered or approved by the board.

"The board is referring this case to the president for such action as he deems appropriate."

The telegram was dispatched to Lewis, Edward R. Burke, president of the Southern Coal producing association; Ezra Van Horn, chairman of the joint negotiating committee of miners and operators; and Charles O'Neill, chairman of the operators negotiating committee of the Appalachian joint conference.

O'Neill, spokesman for the Northern operators, said that the operators had been informed of the WLB order, but refused further comment. The miners were silent.

O'Neill's statement was made as the operators and miners went back into the conference room after holding brief separate caucuses.

Lewis, it was learned, drafted a telegram putting forth the miners' reasons for allowing the strike to occur while the nation was at war. Contents of the telegram, sent in response to the appeal by Ickes to miners and operators to settle their wage controversy, may be announced later in the day.

While the miners and operators met, congress scheduled a vote on whether it will take up the Smith-Conally anti-strike bill to curb labor unions. Meanwhile, dispatches from abroad told of the reaction of American soldiers to the strike, which started suddenly Monday midnight.

U. S. troops stationed in England were bitter over the strike. Other stories from Honolulu and New Guinea also told how the nation's fighting forces there were denouncing the walkout by Lewis' mine workers.

Some hope still existed that there would be a quick end to the strike through some sort of a truce. Unless there is a truce, the case is expected to be sent to the White House for action by President Roosevelt sometime within the next 48 hours.

Lewis and the operators failed to reach any agreement in their wage fight through a day of conferences yesterday. The meetings then were climaxed by the telegram from Ickes for a resumption of war-vital coal production. In the telegram, Ickes, who had seized the mines in the name of the government May 1 when a first strike occurred in the coal fields, chided both the miners and operators and called the walkout "intolerable."

He made no threats but it was certain that drastic government action, possibly with the use of troops, would be taken if the strike is prolonged. Ickes' telegram set the stage for the conference this morning.

Lewis went into the meeting after he had drafted his reply to Ickes. He told the operators, it was learned, that the telegram would be dispatched to the coal czar unless the operators agree to give the miners wage concessions, including a $1.50 a day wage boost in the form of portal-to-portal pay.

All Lewis had to say to newsmen, however, was a gruff "no comment."

Ickes meanwhile made preparations to conserve coal in event of a long strike. He invoked his powers as fuel administrator to issue a stringent coal conservation order.

Ickes' coal conservation order banned delivery of rail-borne coal to consumers who have more than a 10-day supply of bituminous or a 5-day supply of anthracite. Talk of a government-ordered national dim-out and a curb on civilian rail travel was advanced as a further step to conserve the war-vital coal stocks.

Ordinarily the full effect of a coal strike is not severely felt by industry for about 10 days, but concern was evidenced on all sides in Washington that the heavy drain on stocks by war plants might precipitate a crisis sooner.

Raise Cry For Anti-Strike Law

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Behind the cry that "now is the time for action," the house military committee carried to the floor today its fight for an anti-strike law.

Despite opposition voiced by spokesmen for five government agencies yesterday, Chairman May (D.-Ky.) declared the committee would demand house action today.

Rep. Colmer (D.-Miss.) announced he had been assured by Speaker Rayburn of recognition to call up the measure, known as the Smith-Connally bill, this afternoon, and added he expected debate to last several days.

"There is no sense in waiting any longer," May said. "The coal strike is upon us and the people are demanding that congress do something about it."

Bases Candidacy on Record In Past Four Years; Gets Committee Backing.

city funds, which totals more than $600,000, but for which the city administration was criticized in a tax survey conducted by the state Chamber of Commerce recently.

Appearance of the Locke article in the magazine, timed to appear today when Locke informed The News-Journal of his intentions, seemed to indicate that the mayor might have the support of the American Majority in his campaign for renomination. The magazine, which is supported by private contributions, chiefly from large industrialists, has a limited circulation.

Walter Neuger, its editor, was recently accused by the Ohio house of representatives of failing to file with the secretary of state as a lobbyist, after he had taken an active part in urging a favorable vote on a measure repealing ditch inspection fees paid county commissioners.

More than $1,000 was spent in newspaper advertising by the American Majority, it was claimed, seeking support for the bill. Several representatives asked for an investigation, but their resolution was referred to the house reference committee, from which it never emerged.

Mayor Locke, who entered politics four years ago to defeat C. M. Hunter, Democratic candidate for re-election, was the winner over Fred Bushnell, the Democratic nominee two years ago.

Citing water, sewer and street projects which were started during his administration, the mayor said he wanted a chance to complete the city improvements during the next two years.

"Despite handicaps in getting materials because of the war, we are making headway with a big street program and the city waterworks department is in good shape," Mayor Locke said.

He said the city's operating indebtedness will virtually be paid off in the next two years and claimed some credit for reducing it. He did not elaborate on how debt reduction was to his credit.

Hardy said the county Republican organization would back the mayor "100 per cent in his campaign" and added that there was an advantage in having the mayor in office more than one or two terms because it enabled him to carry out a long-range program.

The G. O. P. chairman added that the committee believes the mayor is "the best candidate we could offer this year."

telleria, asserted that "immediate reaction by our artillery forced the enemy to interrupt the bombardment" and claimed an Allied destroyer was severely damaged.

"Repeated air incursions against the island caused heavy damage to buildings," the Italian communique said.

The Fascist command also admitted Allied bombers heaped fresh destruction on the big supply port of Naples and two other Italian mainland cities, Portico and Paola, and struck at Palermo and Marsala in Sicily.

In northern Europe, the RAF's big bombers apparently remained on the ground over night after a week of record-breaking attack, while German night raiders bombed an East Anglian town in England left 10 dead. Berlin identified the target as Margate on the southeast coast.

On the Russian front, Berlin and Moscow both reported heavy fighting in the Caucasus, where the Germans have been clinging desperately to a narrow coastal strip from Novorrossisk to the Kerch strait.

Berlin said the Russians were attacking with strong tank-led forces; Moscow said the Germans were counterattacking.

The Nazi command also noted sharp Red army thrusts attempting to breach German lines at Velizh, about 65 miles north of the German keystone base at Smolensk on the central front, but asserted they were thrown back with heavy casualties.

Record Set In May For Sub Losses

LONDON — (AP) — Increasingly deadly Allied convoy escort services sank more enemy submarines in May than in any other month of the war and in the past two months the number of operating U-boats in the Atlantic appears to have decreased, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, declared today.

He told the house of commons that in the last 12 months the total enemy submarines sent to the bottom exceeded the number sunk in all of the previous war period and that in the last six months the rate of destruction was 25 per cent above the previous half year.

He said it appeared the number of sea marauders sent to the bottom during the month just ended was greater than the Germans could produce in all the facilities available to them.

In the past two months, he asserted, the number of U-boats in Atlantic waters appears to have decreased. This, he said, no doubt was due to more than one cause, but the principal one undoubtedly was due to the rising rate of this destruction.

175 U. S. Vessels Launched In May

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The navy's submarine arm and the shipbuilding maritime commission fed the Axis a bitter dose of information about the war on the high seas today.

Rear Admiral Howard L. Vickery, chief of the commission's gigantic construction program, announced U. S. merchant shipbuilding now exceeds losses—175 vessels of 1,782,000 deadweight tons went down the ways in May, a new record. This followed War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes' report that building was running four times greater than sinkings.

At the same time the navy disclosed U. S. submarines had destroyed seven Japanese ships, including a destroyer.

Civilian Casualties Double Soldier Loss

LONDON—(AP)—Two civilians were killed or injured in air raids in the United Kingdom during the first three years of the war for every five casualties among the kingdom's armed forces, an analysis of official figures showed today.

Total casualties among the fighting men of the United Kingdom during that period, Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee announced yesterday, were 275,844. Total civilian air raid casualties for the same period were 102,934—or 47,291 killed and 55,643 injured.

Since then civilian casualties have risen to 106,516—including 48,733 killed and 57,783 wounded —at the end of March, the last announced figure.

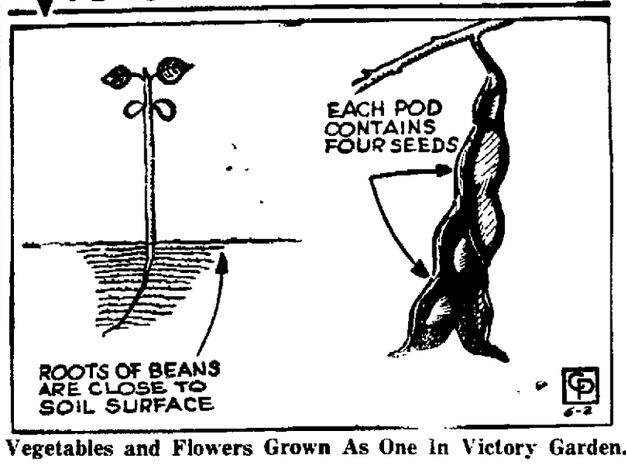
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Vegetables and Flowers Grown As One In Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Assn.

If you would like to grow vegetables and flowers as one in your Victory garden you will find it not only possible, but practical. Plant the Scarlet Runner bean, which is a splendid ornamental climbing bean frequently grown for its handsome sprays of scarlet pea-shaped flowers.

The Scarlet Runner bean is really a utility plant, for its rapid and abundant growth is especially advantageous for screening purposes on porches or fences, while at the same time it gives a plentiful supply of edible beans.

Seeds of the Scarlet Runner are sown three inches deep, either in single or double rows. Space the seeds four inches apart. Like all bean plants, the roots of the Scarlet Runner will be found to grow close to the surface of the soil, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Cultivate lightly to keep down the weeds for deep hoeing is apt to injure the roots.

The bean pods of the Scarlet Runner are from three to six inches long and, as illustrated, each pod contains four large seeds. These seeds are delicious if cooked when green. Later the seeds turn brown, red and black as they ripen and thus lose their attractiveness for cooking purposes. The pods can be used as well as the beans. Gather the pods when half grown for use as "snaps," which means to top and tail them, remove the two outer ribs of the pods and then slice into thin strips. In certain parts of the country, the sliced pods are pickled or salted down for winter use.

the work is expected to be completed by late summer. Approximately 3.6 miles of streets will be resurfaced.

Under the city-state agreement, the city will be required to provide the right-of-way for the widening project at South Main street and Lexington avenue. South Main street will be widened from Glessner avenue southward to the intersection and again over a short area at the city limits. Safety islands for pedestrians will be constructed at the South Main-Lexington avenue junction.

In other street legislation enacted last night, council passed ordinances assessing the property owners' share of street resurfacing costs on completed projects on Bartley avenue, where the benefitting property holders will be asked to pay $14,785 of the cost; Glessner avenue between Sturges and Marion avenues, $2,900; Park avenue east, Central park square, Ashland road, Hedges street, and East First street, $10,000; Glenbeck lane, $7,033; Taylor road, $5,405; Arlington avenue from Euclid avenue to Taylor road, $1,874; East First street from Bushnell street to the Pennsylvania railroad industrial tracks, $3,271; East Raleigh avenue from Main street to the end, $3,980.

Property owners may pay their assessments for the projects in cash within 30 days or in three or five-year periods with their regular property taxes. Some of the projects were set up on a three-year payment basis and others on a five-year plan.

Council authorized the city to borrow $17,100 against the issuance of bonds to cover the property owners' assessments on the resurfacing of six streets this summer. The bonds will be retired as the assessments are collected with property taxes.

Streets scheduled for resurfacing this year by the city include Hedges, McPherson, West First from South Main to Mulberry, West Second from Main to Mulberry, Third from Franklin to Weldon avenues, and South Mulbery from Park avenue to West First street.

Council also authorized the city engineer and service-safety director to co-operate with Madison township trustees in establishing the grade of Winwood drive from South Main street west to the end of the street.

BLAST WRECKS MARION HOME

Woman Shoots Self When Firemen Investigate.

MARION —(AP)— An explosion wrecked the home of Mr. and Mrs. Terley Vance early today and while firemen were invesetigating Mrs. Vance shot and wounded herself in the head, Chief of Police William E. Marks reported.

Vance was injured critically in the blast which was touched off as he lighted a cigaret immediately after arising, Marks said.

The police chief said investigators found a 25-foot garden hose attached to a gas heater in the bathroom. It had been laid into the couple's bedroom, Marks added.

WILL AWAITED

Ford Estate Expected to Pay $200,000,000 In Taxes.

DETROIT —(AP)— Some time within the next few days the will of Edsel Bryant Ford probably will be filed for probate and with it may come some definite disclosure of the financial impact of his death last week upon the future of the Ford Motor company, of which he was president and supposedly largest minority shareholder.

On the basis of what is definitely known of the Ford affairs, federal, state and county inheritance tax levies could require payment of upward of $200,000,000.

FRENCH BOGGED IN NEW CRISIS

Peyrouton Resigns, DeGaulle Accepts, Assuming Full Leadership.

said, he would place Peyrouton in the colonial infantry with his old rank of captain, as requested by the governor.

A spokesman said that Giraud is the "only legal authority" in French North Africa and implied that De Gaulle had no right to accept Peyrouton's resignation since the executive committee has not organized officially.

"The entire mix-up is being investigated and we hope to clarify who is responsible," he said. "Action will be taken."

Reports that Peyrouton had offered his resignation only to De Gaulle had bewildered French observers here, who pointed out that Peyrouton normally should have written Giraud, who appointed him. Peyrouton, as interior minister in the Vichy government in 1940-41, denounced De Gaulle as a traitor to France.

A further complication was offered by the fact that Peyrouton addresed both De Gaulle and Giraud as "president of the executive council" although authoritative sources said no officers had been named. In both letters, he asked to be permitted to serve as a captain in the colonial infantry.

Peyrouton's resignation raised the question of whether President General Auguste Nogues of Morocco and President General Pierre Boisson, also under fire of De Gaulle, also would quit their posts.

De Gaulle's enmity toward Boisson dates from the latter's repulse of a fighting French landing attempt at Dakar in September, 1940. Nogues' Moroccan forces put up the most serious opposition encountered by American troops during their landing in North Africa last November and he has been criticized as an inefficient administrator.

The insistence of De Gaulle that Giraud remove Peyrouton, Nogues and Boisson was one of the principal reasons for the postponement of yesterday's session of the central executive committee. Gen. Georges Catroux, resuming his role as peace-maker, prevailed upon De Gaulle to visit Giraud at his villa yesterday and it was announced that the committee would meet today.

It was understood that an attempt would be made to postpone discussion of controversial issues until the organization of the committee has been completed, but Peyrouton's subsequent resignation and De Gaulle's bid for power may provide new complications.

RUSH WORKERS TO WAR PLANT

Officials Use Trucks, Taxis as Busmen Strike.

LONG BEACH, Cal. —(U.P.)— AFL bus drivers who have tied up the city's only transportation system will refuse to go back to work until the army takes over the concern, union officials said today.

Douglas Aircraft's nearby El Segundo plant held absences to "several hundred" by hiring all available taxis and rushing their own huge trucks to the downtown area to pick up their workers.

Workers were jammed into the monster trucks ordinarily used for hauling wing sections and carted to the plant.

ple. He emphasized that each person must make his own purchase.

"There is plenty of liquor for everyone, so there is no need for anyone to rush down to get his share," Poling said. Stores all over the state are reported to be amply stocked, according to an announcement by State Liquor Director Don A. Fisher.

In Columbus and other Ohio cities where customers were thirstier than in Mansfield, lines formed at the state stores as in pre-ration days. Many of the stores had sizeable lines in front of them before they opened at 1 p. m.

Under the rationing program, a book holder is entitled to one quart, one fifth, or two pints between June 1 and 26, but he may make only one purchase during the period. A book holder cannot buy one pint and return later in the period for a second.

Applicants who did not receive their ration books during the two-week issuing period may obtain them next week.

Tokyo Admits Setback On Chinese Front

Imperial Tokyo headquarters tactily admitted a setback today in fierce battles west of Tungting lake, where Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies have been fighting to defend China's vital "rice bowl" lands and the route to the war-time capital of Chungking.

The Tokyo command, resorting to its familiar propaganda technique of explaining a reverse, said Japanese troops had "successfully completed operations" in the lake region and had killed or wounded 36,300 Chinese and captured 5,923 prisoners against a Japanese loss of 475 killed in action.

Chinese headquarters today said the Japanese retreat toward Ichang was continuing, while Chinese bombers operating with strong fighter escort blasted enemy supply routes in the Yantze valley near Ichang.

Chinese troops were reported laying siege to a Japanese-held city only 12 miles from Ichang.

Japs Concentrate On Full War Production

(By United Press)

Japan, admitting an "extremely grave" war situation, took steps today to concentrate its entire economy on war production.

Tokyo broadcasts did not make clear the reason for moves beyond this statement reported last night by the office of war information:

"The war situation is extremely grave and the demands for increased production of vital war materials have become extremely urgent and important."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1943.

The Greeks have a word for it. One of their sayings is, "Better live an hour as a free man than 40 years as a slave."

One of the chief difficulties in dealing with juvenile delinquency lies in the fact that the cause is so much older than the children.

If you don't remember why you circled June 15 on your calendar it was probably to remind you of the date the second installment of income taxes falls due.

Mansfield Workers Set Example

MANSFIELD, at one time and another, has gained nation-wide attention in a variety of ways, but at no time has this city's community spirit of friendly co-operation been more effectively and creditably evidenced than in development and maintenance of employe-employer relations which have made it possible for three of the city's industrial plants to qualify for the Army-Navy "E" award, for outstanding production of war materials.

It now appears that several local industries were in a close race for the distinction of being the first to gain such recognition and impressive ceremonies in connection with presentation of the "E" flag to the Hughes-Keenan company were quickly followed by announcement of a similar award to the Tappan Stove company Now it is the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company that is also accorded this honor.

It was said by Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, in notifying Westinghouse of the award: "This award symbolizes your country's appreciation of the achievement of every man and woman in the Mansfield plant. I am confident that your outstanding record will bring victory nearer by inspiring others to similar high achievements."

Nor should such inspiration be confined to this community or state. The example provided by Mansfield industrial workers and management might well be heralded to the entire nation as worthy of emulation in large and small cities and in all lines of employment in which production of war materials or essential commodities is involved.

Mansfield has been fortunate, for many years, not only in the broadness of vision of industrial management but also in the intelligence, sound judgment and patriotic spirit of its local labor leadership and it must be recognized that present accomplishments are made possible by the splendid co-operation induced by a feeling of mutual interest on the part of all associates in these industries, in whatever capacity they may be employed.

Striking Miners are Aiding Enemy

EITHER by granting further concessions to striking miners or by agreements that will be reached in the course of further negotiations, daily production of millions of tons of coal will eventually be resumed in the United States—at least temporarily—and that threat to the national war effort will be removed.

The position of government, and of the American people thus far, has been tolerant of such manifestations of dissatisfaction as are being evidenced by the nation's mine union leadership—probably due to realization that a coal miner's lot is difficult at the best, and that, in earlier years, he was among the most exploited and underprivileged of America's essential workers.

There may be merit in the contention of coal miners that they are entitled to higher wages for the work they do—that there has been an unfair distribution of the profits of coal mining—but this is a matter for consideration and adjudication by the War Labor Board and offers no legitimate excuse for the present work stoppage in time of war, when everybody is assumed to be willing to make personal sacrifices in behalf of the national welfare.

Insofar as the attitude of John L. Lewis is concerned, his actions in defiance of orderly processes of government and in instigation of this strike, fall within the general understanding of treason—and should be punishable as such.

Military victories will be of little account if Lewis and his associates in UMW leadership are permitted to continue aiding the enemy to the extent they are now doing.

Will 'Numbers' Racket Be Stopped?

EMPHASIS on the "numbers" racket, in connection with an anti-gambling law just passed by the state legislature, indicates that legislators believe present laws are ample to cope with other forms of commercialized gambling in the state.

Governor Bricker has expressed intention to sign the bill as soon as it reaches him and says that he gave the measure "all the support he could," although his support was not in evidence at the time opponents almost succeeded in killing the bill.

Operation of the "numbers" racket has attained such dangerous proportions in many Ohio cities, and links so closely with other underworld activities, that something more than a lethargic gesture at enforcement of the new law is essential to any material improvement in the situation.

If Governor Bricker is really sincere in his expression of support of the law, which will subject convicted "numbers" operators and agents to prison sentences, he can greatly encourage enforcement by directing municipal and county officials to take immediate action to stop this vicious racket throughout the state.

Women Heed Call for Waste Fats

AMERICAN WOMEN are responding to campaigns being conducted by newspapers throughout the country urging housewives to salvage waste kitchen fats. This statement by the Fat Salvage committee of the Glycerine and Associated Industries is based upon a recent survey of the Office of War Information which shows that active participation of housewives in salvaging used kitchen fats for conversion into glycerine, urgently needed for war production of explosives and medicinals, has increased 29 per cent since January.

The polling disclosed that approximately 40 per cent of American housewives are now making regular contributions of inedible fats through meat dealers as compared with 31 per cent five months ago.

The number of housewives saving their used fats but so far not turning them in regularly also increased, from 59 per cent in January to 63 per cent in May, a rise of 6.9 per cent. In reply to queries as to whether they knew of the government's need for the fats, 96 per cent replied in the affirmative in the May survey, as compared with 92 per cent in January.

"WE, WHO ARE ABOUT TO DIE, SALUTE YOU!"

Farm Labor Problem on the Mend

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—This may be the kind of speculation agriculture and labor officials won't like, since they are in the midst of a vast recruiting program for a land army to work the farms, but if things keep on at the present rate farm labor is going to be one of the least of our war problems.

I don't mean that some sections won't be hard hit when harvest comes, because farm labor is primarily a sectional and seasonal matter that can only be taken care of by a surplus of labor on hand or itinerant laborers who move with the crops.

But there is every indication that the bottom of the scarcity of farm labor has been reached and that the swing-back is moving rapidly now.

UNDER Selective Service orders, deferment of farm labor is now being recognized as a necessity. Drafting of essential farm laborers has virtually ceased.

Secondly, farm workers who flocked to industry to get some of those seemingly fabulous wages have discovered the truth of the old adage about all is not gold, etc. High rents, poor but costly food, and in many instances appalling living conditions have resulted in a back-to-the-farm movement that has caused numerous squawks from war industry management. To what extent this is taking place can't be determined positively yet, but some observers here think it is nationwide and likely to grow in volume.

A third point is that labor and agriculture officials now talk in terms of a land army of 3,500,000. Some of these will get jobs aplenty when the seasonal farm work reaches its peak, but it's a pretty safe guess that some will never do more than a few days or at most a few weeks of work.

At the moment, the Women's Land army is aiming at a "standing army" of only 10,000 full-time farm workers and a reserve of 50,000 additional part-time workers and officials are going about it in the intelligent manner of building corps where they are most likely to be needed.

A part of this land army will be about 500,000 high school youths who will work the summer. Many farmers turn a cold eye on this land army idea, since most of the workers will be inexperienced and unused to the hardships of farm life.

But when they are driven to desperation by labor scarcity, farmers will welcome them. Farm officials here are positive that once the farmers try land army labor, they will be happy to have it back.

FURTHERMORE, the much maligned Farm Security Administration is doing a whale of a job in bringing farm labor from Jamaica, Puerto Rico, the Bahamas and Mexico. Over-oll figures on these temporary importations have not been made available yet, but I do know that in several eastern states, around 4,000 of them have been placed where they will do the most good.

Then, there is the official declaration that some of those thousands of captives we picked up in Tunisia soon will be "available" for farm labor. And don't think that thousands of them won't welcome outdoor work and farm food.

The farm labor problem may not be selved, but it's certainly on the mend.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, June 2, 1923.

Delegation of Oakland, Calif, Shriners, en route to Washington, D. C., meeting, were entertained at luncheon at Elks club here.

E. G Hamblin was elected noble grand of Mansfield lodge, No. 19, I. O. O. F.

E. L. Hughes moved from Toledo to 607 West Fourth street.

Fred Edwards and family moved from Newlon avenue into new home on Glenwood boulevard.

Miss Bernice Zimmerman and Wayne Clapper were married by Rev. H. C. Roehner.

Rev. J. W. Donnan, 73, retired Methodist minister, died at his home, 14 Augustine avenue.

Little friends attended birthday party given for Louise Tomlinson at her home on Sherman avenue.

Miss Carrie S. Wolford and Charles J. Pittinger were married in Bucyrus.

TODAY IN HISTORY

The first marriage of a president in the White House occurred on this date in 1886, when Grover Cleveland, our 22d chief executive, married Frances Folsom.

Dave Boone Says:

TO THINK that the president of the United States, commander-in-chief of all the fighting forces, can be defied the way it's done by John L. Lewis and his coal miners makes the public pretty sick at heart. It hadn't really expected it of any group or any labor leader.

* * *

But it's come to a final showdow between the spirit at Attu, Tunisia and Guadalcanal and the spirit of Pikesville, Harlan and Scranton.

* * *

No employer has been allowed to defy the government this way and it doesn't seem possible any worker or labor boss will be. If it's okay to impound a factory it ought ot be okay to impound a labor outfit.

* * *

Most Americans feel with Viscount Halifax that this war is bringing a great development spiritually. "The manifold sufferings being endured by our fighters to prevent the domination of evil are a dramatic repudiation of ignoble creeds," he says.

* * *

Anyhow, that's a warming thought for the faithful and it reflects the mood of everybody touched by this global war.

Timely Editorial

Increasing Food Shortage.

While the matter has not yet received sufficient publicity to make it sink deeply into the public understanding, agricultural experts who can be depended upon are now in agreement that the people of the United States cannot escape a food shortage which will go far beyond anything that most of us have expected. In the first place there will undoubtedly be a shortage of food for animals by the middle of summer. By autumn we shall be confronted by a shortage of food for humans, the like of which this country has not seen.

With the commitments which America has made for feeding our armies, at home and abroad, and for lend-lease to our allies and the enormous amounts of food to be required for prisoners, refugees, the starving of the occupied countries, plus our civilian needs at home, it is just "not in the cards" for us to produce that much.

We shall consequently be reduced to far more severe rationing than anything we have experienced. The time has come for us to face these facts and to begin to make ready our adjustments—Grove Patterson in the Toledo Blade.

THE WAR mobilization committee has been established, within the Office of War Mobilization which is within the Office for Emergency Management which is within the executive office of the president, to unify stuff.

* * *

It also will coordinate things. And cooperate with other things.

First we had Donald Nelson. He was the top boy, responsible only to the president.

Then we had Paul McNutt. He was the top boy, responshible only to the president.

Then we had Jimmie Byrnes. He was the top boy, responsible only to the president.

Byrnes was director of economic stabilization then. And he's the only one of the three that hasn't lost any ground in the new shift. He's still responsible only to the president.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Survey Reveals Army Has Been Wasting High Percentage of Food

WASHINGTON—With the entire country rationed, the Truman committee has just unearthed the fact that 21 per cent of the army's food has been thrown away.

However, the army has now discovered what every housewife knows—that if you count on ten persons for dinner and only six persons come, there will be food left over.

Distressing thing is that it took the army months of survey and experiment to discover this simple household truth. After hearing stories of wastage, the Quartermaster Corps made a survey at three large posts—Camp Lee, Va., Fort Knox, Ky., and Fort Benning, Ga. They made the discovery that 21 per cent of the edible food was being thrown away.

Having established that fact, the GMC began a scientific examination of possible causes. They began to ask the question which any housewife would have asked in the first place: Are we preparing more food than is needed?

They discovered the astonishing fact that rations were being issued for everybody on the camp's roster, regardless of whether they were present in camp that day or not.

By equally laborious study it was discovered that when soldiers are on week-end leave, they don't come to the mess hall for meals. Especially on pay-day week-ends

Result of the study was that 80 per cent of the wastage was found to be from "excess preparation." Having reached this formal conclusion, the army took action. The Quartermaster Corps, acting through the Quartermaster Board, "formulated a system which issued one ration for each man actually present eating."

This eliminated the rations previously issued for absentees, and the wastage promptly fell off. The army could do with a good housewife in every kitchen, but as the next best thing the army has now borrowed Miss Mary I. Barber from the Kellogg company, Battle Creek, Mich., to help save food and prepare better food in army kitchens. She is bringing about some important changes.

Note: When the Truman committee looked into this situation, it was told by QMC that the highest percentage of food discarded was of "edible kale"—three-quarters of it ended in the garbage pail. To which Senator Truman responded, "That is a wise survey; that is just the way I feel about it."

Italian Donkey.

WINSTON CHURCHILL left many a fine phrase behind him, but the best was the one on Italy. Talking privately to a group of Britishers, he outlined the intended program of softening up Italy by a combination of two methods: (1) continued bombing plus (2) propaganda by radio urging the people that if they would throw over Mussolini, the Allies would not be too hard on them.

"Thus," said Churchill, "we employ both the cudgel and the carrot to budge the donkey."

Ruml Tax Battle.

THE ATMOSPHERE of the final tax conference wasn't nearly so harmonious as Senator Vandenberg of Michigan and other Rumlites let on when they emerged, grinning from ear to ear over their victory in dodging 75 per cent of the nation's tax bill.

There was a hot flareup just before the closed-door meeting adjourned. Representatives Jere Cooper of Tennessee and John Dingell of Michigan, militant foes of the Ruml plan, protested mightily and served notice they would fight the conference measure on the house floor.

"I'll never sign the conference report," Dingell declared. "This is one of the worst steals ever attempted on the United States treasury. I would have been willing to agree to a reasonable compromise to break the deadlock here, but I won't be a party to this outrageous bill. It is almost as evil as the Ruml plan itself and will work a terrible hardship on the working classes of America."

Waving his finger at the Rumlites, Dingell continued: "I, for one, am not going to take this lying down. I'm going to speak out on the floor against this unholy product of Wall Street and I'll continue to speak out as long as there's breath in my body. You haven't got me licked."

Dingell was so aroused that Cooper tried several times to quiet him, fearing he might become ill. However, Cooper informed the conference that he enthusiastically endorsed everything his Michigan colleague said and announced that he, too, would refuse to sign the compromise report.

Good Neighbors In Reverse.

CENSORS have some wax recordings of overseas telephone conversations which will cause red faces in the state department. When the diplomats play them back, they will hear such words as "Those perfumed . . . in the state department are about as Good Neighbors as Adolf Hitler."

The words come from a Chilean with a Yale accent, Armando Hamell, who did his best to cooperate with the United States and Great Britain in boycotting Axis insurance companies and then got kicked in the pants for his pains.

What happened was that the Chilean government formerly reinsured its business with certain Axis insurance companies, Tokyo Fire and Marine, Munich, and Trieste Generals. This meant that the Axis countries received vital information regarding the property they insured, such as cargoes, ships, nitrate plants, etc.

So at the urging of the state department, Armando Hamell, head of Chile's Reinsurance Bank, arranged to cut out all dealings with Axis insurance companies and deal only with U. S.-British companies.

But after this was arranged, British insurance companies took the lead in hiking rates, cutting out commissions, and refusing to turn any business back to Chile. American companies followed the British lead. They no longer had any competition, didn't have to meet lower Axis rates, made the most of their monopoly.

No wonder Armando Hamell in Saptiago has been burning up the telephone to New York telling friends what he thinks of the state department and British-American business.

Friendly Reception at Smoke Screen Camp Gives Ernie Feeling of Being Near Home.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa—(By Wireless)—The nicest American camp I've ever seen in the fighting area of North Africa is one inhabited by about a hundred men who ran the smoke-screen department around a big port to help confuse German air raiders.

I happened upon the thing wholly by accident. Another correspondent and I were driving through country that was strange to us. We came to a town late one afternoon, and were told by a bored billeting clerk that there was no place in town for us to stop and that's that. So we just said phooey on you, friend, we haven't slept under a roof in two months anyhow, we carry our own beds with us, and we hate cities to boot.

Whereupon we drove right out of town again and started looking for some spot under a tree where we could camp for the night.

It was during this search that we passed a very neat-looking American camp by the roadside. On an impulse we drove in and asked the first officer we saw if we could just throw our bedrolls down on the ground and stay all night with them.

He said, "what do you want to throw them on the ground for?"

We said, "Well, we don't want to put you to any trouble, and we're accustomed . . ."

"Nonsense!" he said. "We'll make room for you in our cabins. Have you had supper yet?"

"No, but we've got our own rations with us."

"Nonsense!" he said. "Come and eat first, and then we'll find you a place to stay."

* * *

THE OFFICER was Lieut. Sam Kesner, of Dallas, Tex. He was wearing coveralls and a field cap and you couldn't tell him from a private except for his bars. He went to Texas A. & M., and got his chemical engineering degree and his army commission both on the same day.

Kesner's boss is Capt. J. Paul Todd, of Clinton, S. C. He was a schoolteacher before the war. He taugh mathematics at Rock Hill, S. D., and Atlanta.

Their outfit is a part of the Chemical Warfare Service, but instead of dealing out poisonous gases they deal out harmless smoke that covers up everything when raiders come over.

By the nature of their business they work all night and sleep all day. They make their various stations in little groups in a big semicircle around the city, just before dusk, and stay there on the alert till after daylight. At midnight a truck makes the rounds with sandwiches and hot coffee. Captain Todd himself also makes a four-hour tour of the little groups each night, ending about 2 a. m.

Their assignment has been permanent enough to justify their fixing up their camp in a homelike way. They have taken old boards from the dock area and built about three dozen small cabins, sort of like tourist-camp cabins back home. They have board floors, board sidewalls and canvas roofs.

They have built bunks for their bedrolls, hung up mosquito nets, hammered boards together for chairs, made tables, and put little steps and porches in front of their cabin doors. They've named their cabins such things as "Iron Mike's Tavern," "African Lovers," "The Village Barn" and "The Opium Den."

Lieutenant Kesner has a sign hanging outside his door that says, "Sixty-Five Hundred Miles from Deep in the Heart of Texas." The heart is drawn instead of spelled out.

Captain Todd has a wife back home named Marigene and a daughter named Paulagene. He left when his daughter was four weeks old. Now she's a year and a half. But he keeps himself well reminded of them, for tacked on the wall of his cabin are 34 pictures of his wife and baby. He's the picture-takingest man I ever ran onto.

THE HUNDRED men in this camp are just like a clan. They have all been together a long time and they have almost a family pride in what they're doing and the machinery they're doing it with.

One of the boys in the kitchen said he'd read this column for years. He is Corp. Edward Dudek, of Cleveland. I asked him what he did before the war besides read this column, and he said he was a chemical worker. The army clicked long enough to put him into the Chemical service, but then a cog slipped somewhere and now he's a cook instead of a chemical worker. But I suppose he can make his own fumes when he gets homesick by spilling a little grease on the stove.

We spent a comfortable night with his outfit and tarried around a couple of hours the next morning, just chatting, because everybody was so friendly. Then they gassed us up without our even asking for gas, and we finally left feeling that we'd visited the nearest thing to home since hitting Africa.

A Farmer's Diary By CALVIN A. BYERS

Why Pick on History

"HERE is the earth," says Emerson, "complete in every detail,—sound as a nut; but the theories of the earth and the accounts of the earth are things of shreds and patches."

A survey by New York Times reveals gross ignorance of United States history among college freshmen. They cannot name the 13 original states, nor the presidents, nor the dates of past wars.

"So what?" laughs the average farmer. "Why pick on history? History had its troubles—we've got some of our own. History is the least of 'em. It's what's goin' to happen tomorrow that concerns us—let's look and plan for that!"

What most folks have not stopped to think is that we, ourselves, are borne upon the crest of what has been. You are here today because your great-great grandfather was a praying pioneer who crossed the sea to find a place to worship—and because he could shoot quicker than a Redskin. You will be here tomorrow if that son of yours can fly his airplane better than his enemy can, and having won a world war can wisely administer a world peace.

History is not just a story—a book to dust or to mark a lesson in. History is a part of each of us—and we are part of it.

I have heard it said—beautifully—"a school should be like a river of flowing water, sparkling under the sun and stars. Each child should be "like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season." (Not your fruit, or my fruit, but HIS fruit, in his own season.)

Individuals are small. Earthworms are, too. Both of them make history. What the world will be depends upon how we and the other earthworms that live today use what is given us. Little things do matter! Earthworms rejuvenate the soil; individuals rejuvenate politics and world society.

Education ought not to be composed of separate cells-walled up—history, literature, science, mathematics. Formal education has often squeezed the very life out of subject matter. Because students and facts have been pigeon-holed together for a specified number of weeks is no sign persons have been educated.

Commencement time should mean an eager going out to learn more about what a student is interested in. Every year a graduate should root deeper and deeper into the world of affairs, growing bigger, wider branches—yielding more fruit.

Instead, some graduate into a groove, then into a rut, then into a grave, without realizing what their own best "fruit in its season" might have yielded for all mankind . . . and for themselves.

—Education should, I believe, teach a man how to use all of himself for the best good of all his fellows. The more a man knows, the more he lives—or should. But maybe I'm too visionary.

What do you think? The public schools are yours. How ought your children—and mine—be taught? How should we choose their teachers? What should the aim of American education be?

(Editor's Note: Address your letters to Calvin A. Byers, Bellville, Ohio. He plans to write a symposium of answers on this subject.)

AN APPLE FOR EVE --

By Kathleen Norris

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER XXIV

On a golden autumn afternoon in Hugh's car she and Hugh and the children took the long road to the reservoir in search of Al Harris or news of Al Harris. The day was warm and still; the severest heat of the summer was over; men were boxing apples and pears in the orchards; the Bettancourts were cutting grapes. Loveday was almost silent. She had grown strangely quiet in the long three weeks since Larry had gone away. Even to Hugh she had not talked in complete confidence. Hugh had been told only that Larry had been discouraged at not finding the work he wanted to do and could do and had gone away, threatening to enlist.

"He won't enlist?" Hugh, deeply concerned, had said in his cautious way.

"He might. He's crazy about aviation."

"Yes, but with three children."

"Well, he contended that he wasn't supporting them."

Her brother's distressed look had turned toward her.

"But — my goodness, that's a mere accident of the moment. He will be. He would be if he stayed here. He wasn't—wasn't angry?"

"Well, he was upset. I think perhaps," she had said soberly.

* * *

The narrow dirt road twisted on and on up hill, and presently they turned a sharp corner and came out of the woods to see the reservoir shining wide and peaceful in the afternoon sun. Across a bridge and beyond a shallow strip of reedy marsh stood the keeper's white cottage. Below it was a little landing and an old rowboat tied to a stake. A bent, lean old man with red hair was puttering with the boat. Hugh hailed him.

He came blinking suspiciously toward them, and Loveday recognized him at once.

"You're Mr. Harris," she said. "I'm Dr. Burney's grand-daughter. Where's Captain Willetts?"

"He druv down to town to git some staples," the old man said, blinking in the sun as he stood looking at them. "What ye want with him?"

"We were looking for you," said Loveday. "I suppose you've heard that my brother was found, Mr. Harris? This is Dr. Gurney."

"I heard somethin' about it," Al Harris said grudgingly in the shrill, suspicious voice of an old mountaineer. "Sounded to me kinder queer. Too late to prove them things. The Old Doc's dead, and Mis' Gurney—she's dead too. I don't know what ye want me fur."

"We want to get that memorial hospital for crippled children started," Hugh said, getting out of the car and helping Loveday to jump the children out. "And we thought you might help."

"You can get in the boat," Loveday said to the twins, "but walk on the planks steadily and sit quiet when you get there . . . It's my grandfather's money, Al," she went on, turning to Harris. "We think it might still be found. Hugh here—my brother—is following up all sorts of clues, and he wants to know how it happened that the child whose body was found had on one of his old play suits."

"I don't know what that'd prove," Harris said, spitting on the ground, looking away, and meditating before he replied. "All I know is I was after a deer an' I got pret' well up to the ridge back here—m'wife and I had a place up that way then—an' I was settin' round, an' I seen this little end of a blue suit stickin' out from under a culvert—"

"Yes, I know. But the body wasn't my brother's. And the thing is, who was that child, and how did he happen to have on one of my brother's play suit?"

"Well," said the old man in a sort of crafty whine, "now you're askin' me somethin' I don't know nothin' about. Your grandfather losin' all that money didn't seem to me to have nothin' to do with my findin' the boy an' claiming the reward, an' I don't p'pose to stand here talkin' about what's over an' done with."

There was a weather-silvered bench on the pier near the parked car; Loveday and Hugh sat down on it, and Harris, after an irresolute glance about, perched himself on a little barrel top, facing them.

"You were an orderly in the hospital, weren't you?" Hugh asked.

"I's there 27 years, gittin' paid sixty-five a month, which a dog couldn't have et on," the old man answered promptly. "I worked nights sometimes, cleanin' up in the wards; I come in ev'ry mornin' as the clock struck seven, an' often I didn't git my breakfas' until maybe 10 o'clock."

"But you did get a check for a thousand dollars?"

"No sir, I never got no check. The doctor had a desk drawer full of money an' he paid it to me in twenties. An' m'wife's brother," Harris said bitterly, "he lost it for me! He was goin' to turn it into five thousand before ye could say 'scat' to a cottontail! Delia, she says, 'He knows what he's goin' to do with it—'"

"Delia did!" Loveday exclaimed.

"Yes'm. She was a great girl for tellin' lies, Delia was."

He rambled on and was presently climbing the mountain again in his familiar narrative to follow a deer, resting in the woods, discovering a strip of a child's suit blowing from the mouth of a culvert. Loveday had heard this many times if never before from him.

* * *

"We didn't get much out of him, did we?" she said on the drive home, referring to Harris, "except that he was evidently uneasy scared."

"We got everything out of him, poor rat!" Hugh answered, laughing. "I've got a pretty clear idea of what went on. But exactly how to use it I don't know. We've got to get hold of this Delia Dillon."

"Delia Dillon was a fine, gentle, highly religious Irishwoman. I hope that nothing he said influenced you to think that she'd ever steal anything or have anything to do with a person like him!" Loveday said warmly.

"What do you remember of her?"

"Just that she was a big and fine and kind of scary, too, now that I come to think of it. She was always jumping up at the least sound and locking windows and looking under beds. As I remember; she wasn't very young. Thirty-two or three, maybe; I know she was only sixteen when she first came to us."

"But you don't remember her married name?"

"No."

"One thing I got was that Harris was trying to appear bottled up like a clam," Hugh said, "but there were several other things too. For one, he'd gone to desperate means to find Delia Dillon. Illiterate and ignorant as he is, he'd gone to San Francisco and telephoned every Dillon in the book. That's an extraordinary amount of trouble for him to have taken, and if he did that, you may be sure he went over all the Dillons in the neighboring villages as well. Also he went to the post office to find if they had a forwarding address, and he must have bothered them too, because it evidently came to the point of his threatening to report them!"

"You're smart!" Loveday said, enthralled.

"It was all there. But there was more there too. Evidently he'd been bullying this girl, threatening her, too, perhaps. She knows something or she has something he wants.

* * *

"Perhaps she held onto the child's clothes for months, perhaps a year. By that time the reward had been offered and he'd had time to think out what he actually did. At least I'm sure he did. He must have gone and collected cadavers for the hospital doctors' college—for dissection, you know. He told us that today too. He'd had an errand over to the Poor Farm."

"Gruesome!" gasped Loveday.

"Every medical student has to have a corpse, my dear. That's simple routine. You get your corpse and you work on it. And what's easier than for him to take the bones of some child's body — some poor scrap struck down in the street, perhaps, report to the hospital that the family refused to part with it, and plan his 'discovery'?"

"He isn't smart enough," the girl said, shaking her head. "A mighty clever man would hesitate before trying to put over a thing like that."

THEATERS

Human Comedy.

One of the best pictures to come to the screen of the Ohio in months is "The Human Comedy," starring Mickey Rooney, Frank Morgan and James Craig. The film is based on the life of a typical American family—the Macauleys of Ithaca, Cal. It is the contact of the Macauleys with persons in all walks of life that paints the morale that all people, rich or poor, are inherently good and human. Rooney plays the part of a high school boy who goes to work in a telegraph office after school to support the family after his older brother enters the army. Five-year-old Jack Jenkins plays the part of Ulysses, Mickey's little brother. His characterization of a typical five year old is so natural that he wins his way into the hearts of all who see the picture.

Thrills, Laughs.

A dead man comes back to life and saves an innocent man from death in the electric chair by helping two young people solve the murder—a murder in which he was the victim. This builds up the action in the Madison's presentation, "The Man in the Trunk." Raymond Walburn is the ghost while Lynne Roberts and George Holmes solve the murder. Appearing together on the screen for the 170th time since they teamed up in 1924, Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are seen in "Air Raid Wardens," the other feature. After being fired from their jobs as air raid wardens, the two comedians emerge as heroes when they capture a group of saboteurs.

Chetniks.

Sabotaging by day, raiding by night and striking the enemy in a thousand places, "Chetniks," the Fighting Guerrillas, is slated to open tomorrow at the Ritz. Featuring Philip Dorn, Anna Sten, John Shepperd, Virginia Gilmore and Martin Kosleck, the action is set in the Balkan mountains. But the film might well be the death defying story of the guerrillas everywhere, for the patriotism and daring methods of those heroic men are present wherever men fight for freedom. Dorn is cast as the Chetnik leader and it is upon his orders that the men move silently down from the hills to prey on the enemy contingents. Bill Elliott is cast in the leading role in "Calling Wild Bill Elliott," other attraction at the Ritz.

Spy Ring Blasted.

As a pre-Pearl Harbor radio reporter warning America against sabotage and possible enemy action, John Beal comes to the Park with Florence Rice in Columbia's new drama, "Stand By All Networks." Beal is seen as an on-the-spot-radio commentator who reports the news while it happens. Reporting a water front blaze, he uncovers a suspicion of sabotage and promptly broadcasts the fact. But Beal's broadcast is regarded as "dangerous" and he eventually is forced off the air. A private detective, working with Beal, discovers direct evidence. The detective is murdered, but Beal, by clever detective work, tracks down the spies. Other picture at the Park is "The Payoff."
